

PLAN CAMPAIGN AGAINST EPIDEMIC

Conference of Health Experts Recommends Uniformity in Health Certificates and in Reporting Cases of Disease.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, August 18.—Definite action which it is claimed will greatly aid the organized efforts to wipe out infantile paralysis, was taken at today's session of the national health experts and the chiefs of the public health service. Two plans were suggested and thoroughly discussed and will be adopted before the session finally adjourns late today. They were:

1.—The adoption of a uniform health certificate for travelers to be recognized by all of the railroads of the country and so to do away with the confusion resulting from the issuance of certificates by the different state and local authorities.

2.—The adoption of a uniform system of certificates to be used by all the states in reporting cases of infantile paralysis.

The first report, submitted by Dr. John S. Fulton, of Maryland, was formulated by a committee of which he was chairman, together with Doctors Thomas D. Tuttle of Washington, E. C. Williams of Virginia, Henry M. Bracken of Minnesota, and Dr. C. H. Banks of the public health service, all of whom have made special studies of the problem of preventing the interstate spread of the disease.

Dr. Banks for the past six weeks has headed a corps of public health officers who have been studying this question exclusively in New York.

This proposed plan for the adoption of uniform health certificates, however, cannot become effective until it has had the approval of the various state authorities. The states control the rules of travel on lines wholly within their borders, while the public health service has jurisdiction over interstate travel. The plan therefore is to devise a health certificate which, in addition to meeting the approval of the Federal health also will have the sanction of several states authorities.

At the conference a number of railroad representatives have complained of the lack of uniformity in certificates, because certificates issued in one state have been declared unsatisfactory by health authorities in adjoining states, causing, in many instances, the forcible removal of children from trains to the inconvenience of parents and railroad authorities.

Like simplification is expected from a uniform system of statistics. This report was prepared by Drs. Laveador and Woodward of the District of Columbia; Dr. C. St. Clair Drake of Illinois, and Dr. A. C. Young, of Maine.

The relation of the community to the after-care of infantile paralysis patients was the subject of an interesting symposium. Dr. H. A. Ladd of Vermont, the only delegates present able to report no recent cases of infantile paralysis under his jurisdiction, told of the work under his observation. There was a severe epidemic of infantile paralysis in Vermont two years ago he said.

A system of clinics has been established whereby former sufferers from the disease report regularly for examination and treatment. He said that excellent results had been obtained where the physicians' advice had been carefully followed.

A discussion of the general principles of control again emphasized the difficulty of dealing with the disease due to obscurity as to its origin and spread. It was emphasized that the states of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, which have thousands of summer visitors from New York, including many children are practically free of the disease. And of the few cases in Maine and New Hampshire not one is that of a New York child or in any way traceable to New York.

The importance of a rigid quarantine of all cases also was dwelt upon. The different states have different laws on this subject and in this respect an effort will be made to bring about uniform regulations.

GRADE ON PALENTVILLE ROAD.

Town of Catskill Officials Talk It Over.

The town board of Catskill, comprising Supervisors Herman C. Coover, Town Clerk George W. Swarthout, and Justices of the Peace Roscoe D. Miller, Ira B. Kerr, James B. Rouse and George W. Winans, held an open air meeting at Palenville Wednesday afternoon, for the purpose of giving residents of that section an opportunity to express themselves regarding the contemplated change of one-fourth of a mile of the Bogart road. A large majority of those who attended the meeting were in favor of making the change which will reduce the grade and make the road less dangerous to travel. The members of the board gave their careful attention to the remarks of all present, and returned to Catskill to decide the matter at a future meeting.

Old School Baptist Meeting.

There will be Old School Baptist meeting at the home of Orville Winchell, 58 South avenue, Saturday evening, August 19, at 8 o'clock. Elder George Rustin of New York will preach. All are welcome.

R. R. PRESIDENTS BACK MANAGERS

Conference With President Wilson Postponed to Afternoon—Up to Date There Seems to be a Deadlock.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Aug. 18.—Shortly before ten o'clock today, President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio telephoned Secretary to the President Tumulty a request that the conference between President Wilson and the railway executives be postponed from 11:30 until some time during the afternoon. Tumulty said he would put the request up to the president but that it was certain it would be granted as the president is desirous of consulting the convenience of the railway men in every possible way.

President Willard told the White House that the postponement would expedite matters, as if the conference was held as originally planned the presidents would have to ask an adjournment to complete their case, by deferring it until later in the day they would be ready to enter into a full and free discussion of all the questions involved.

Upon receiving Mr. Willard's request the president readily consented to the postponement, setting 2 o'clock this afternoon as the hour at which he would receive the railway presidents.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington Aug. 18.—President Wilson and the railway managers and presidents, summoned here by his direction, were in a deadlock today. Practically all of the railway chiefs who have arrived here unqualifiedly approve the position taken by the managers in rejecting the administration's compromise plan which would give the men the eight hour work day and pro rata pay for overtime. This was made very plain at their various conferences. But, out of respect to the president, the heads of the big railroad systems refused to be quoted or even to admit that they had adopted any position pending today's meeting at the White House.

At two conferences, one last night and the other this morning, the railroad heads heard in detail just what the managers had done. It was agreed that in the discussion with the White House the opposition to the eight hour work day suggested in the administration conference, would not be placed entirely upon economic grounds. While it was agreed that the expense was prohibitive the men responsible for the operation of the great railway systems of the country insisted that it would be impossible to arrange schedules so as to maintain the present high class service on an eight hour basis. They insisted that the promise made to the president by the brotherhood representatives, and passed along by him to the managers, that the men would do as much work in eight hours as they now do in ten was impossible of fulfillment.

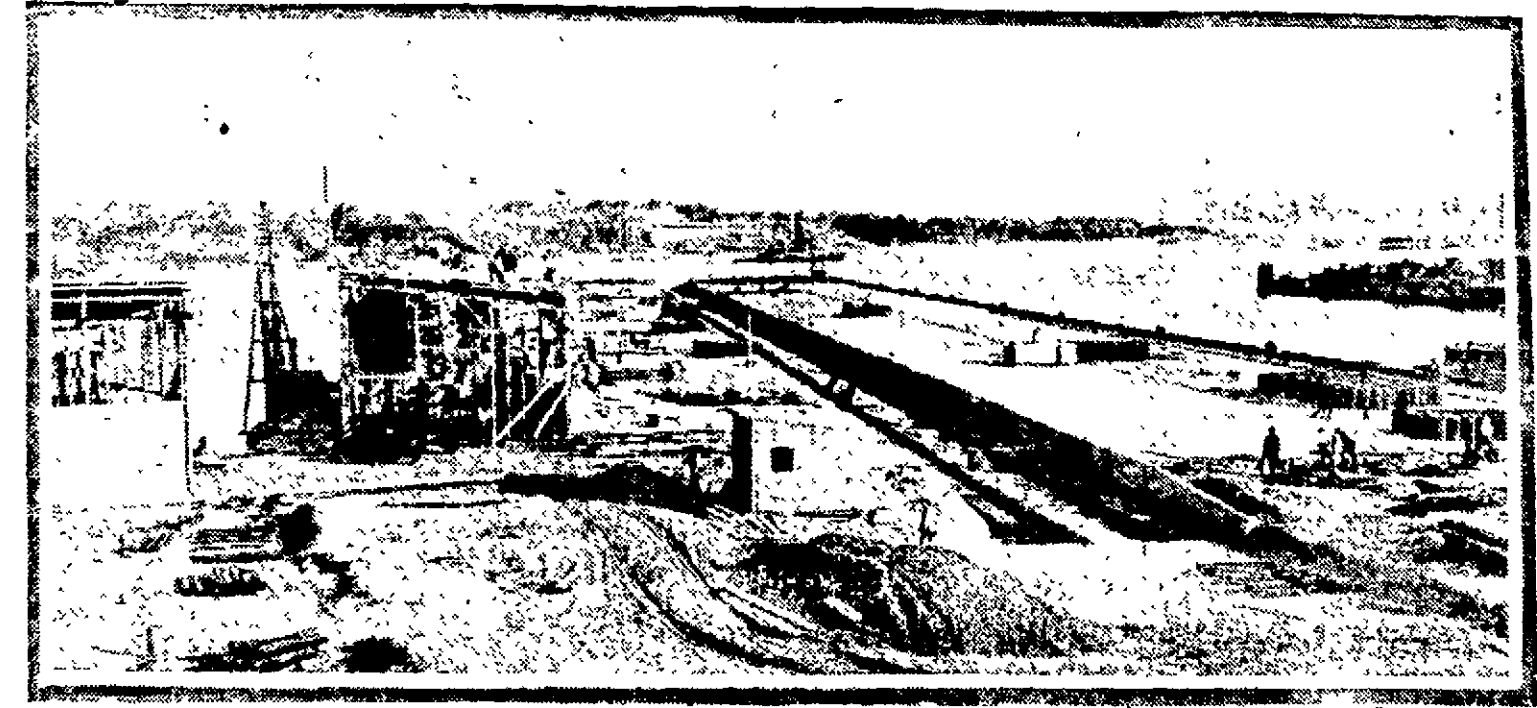

Despite the attitude of opposition expressed by the railway chiefs there was an atmosphere of great optimism at the White House prior to the conference with the railroad chiefs. The president has been assured that his compromise proposition has the approval of the brotherhood delegates. It would have been accepted at last night's meeting, only that the leaders urged that definite action be deferred until today on the ground that as the question of peace or war now was squarely before the railroads there was no necessity for haste on the part of the brotherhood.

All of the railway presidents summoned by the president were on hand in person, or by their executive representative, when they resumed their conference at 8:30 this morning with the exception of President John H. Peyton of the N. C. and St. L. and he was expected during the day. It was expected that when the presidents reached the White House at 11:30 they would listen to the arguments of President Wilson and would then make it plain that they had every confidence in the managers and endorsed the attitude the latter had taken.

There was plenty of anti-administration feeling in evidence among the railway chiefs during the morning and most of the older men argued that they ought to defy the president and stand pat on their refusal. But a number of leaders privately admitted that eventually they believed they would be forced to give in. They declared that they did not believe they could afford, in the present state of public opinion, to defy the president and the men and permit a strike to take place. With congress in session, certain of the leaders said, it would be very easy for the administration to enact legislation that would prove troublesome.

The union representatives went into session in the Bijou Theater at 5:30 to take a formal vote on the proposition made by the president. The session was secret but Messrs. Garretson and Lee declared they considered it was certain the proposition would be accepted. They said the members of the brotherhood eventually would ratify the plan which includes the eight-hour work day at present rates of pay and the referring to a commission of all collateral matters for adjustment and that then a committee would be named to notify the White House of that action.

Despite the confidence of the leaders that the plan was to be ratified, very strong opposition developed in certain quarters against acceptance. Many of the southern and western delegates who compromise the younger element, made very speech-

EXCITING RACING AT ELLENVILLE FAIR

Pincky Driver, Thrown From Sulky. Starts Again and Wins Second Money—Bryan, of Course, Last in the Race.

Hurled from the seat of his racing sulky when another sulky collided with it, Frank Brooks of Valley Cottage, driving Mildred McGregor in the first race of the day on Thursday at the Ulster County Fair at Ellenville, had a narrow escape from serious injury, and it was only through his own coolness and strength that he escaped uninjured. The accident occurred during the first start of the 2:40 class pace or trot, and gave the crowd a slight taste of what was to follow in the way of exciting racing.

There were eight starters in the first race, and as they pulled by the judge's stand to turn and wheel by under the wire, it was hard to pick the winner. When the horses were sent to the wire for the first heat the excitement was as the horses turned preparatory to making a flying start another sulky in turning collided with Brooks's sulky upsetting it and hurling Brooks to the track. As soon as the horses had turned facing the wire they instinctively started off at full speed, and Brooks's horse started with the rest. The driver's dangerous position was seen by the crowd which held its breath in suspense and gazed at the drama being unfolded before its eyes. Brooks in falling from his sulky had retained his grip on his reins and had caught hold of the seat with one hand, and as he was dragged over the ground he hung grimly on and by main strength began to pull himself up over and onto the seat. As the eight horses galloped under the wire the ringing of the starter's bell signaling to start over again caused Brooks's horse to slacken his speed, and a man in the crowd jumped out and grasped the animal by the head just as Brooks pulled himself up on his seat.

Undaunted by his narrow escape Brooks continued in the race, and won second money.

The First Race.
The weather on Thursday was ideal, and though it was a hot day, still there was a breeze blowing from the mountains that made the heat endurable. While the exhibits and other attractions at the fair came in for a share of attention, yet the horse was king of the day, and long before the first race was called the grand stands began to fill up, while crowds lined the track near the finish line, which was also the starting line.

The first race on the program was the 2:40 pace or trot for a purse of $200. There were fourteen entries, but before the race started six of them were scratched. The eight horses that started were:

Winsome Worthy, ch. s., Fred Brink, Stone Ridge.
Mildred McGregor, blk. m., Frank Brooks, Valley Cottage.
Clay Wiggin, J. F. Dinan, New York.

Jeff B., blk. g., W. Moffit, Wurtsboro.
Frank Moke, ch. g., H. F. Nesbitt, Walden.
Annie Setzer, b. m., G. W. Rexford, Lochesheldrake.
Justisima, b. m., R. Stapleton, Monticello.
Belle Onward, b. m., J. A. Sholly, Monticello.

After several false starts the horses were sent away well bunched, but gradually Winsome Worthy and Mildred McGregor drew ahead and at half mile were leading with a comfortable margin, and paced under the wire finishing with Winsome Worthy first and Mildred McGregor second. The time was 2:24 1/2.

The Second Heat.
In the second heat it required several false starts before the horses were placed and sent away by the starter. The second heat developed some pretty running with Justisima leading at the half mile pressed closely by Belle Onward.

horses, however, could not retain the lead and again Winsome Worthy and Mildred McGregor flashed to the front finishing in the order named. The time was somewhat slower than the first heat being 2:27.

The Third Heat.
The third heat proved a repetition of the other two heats with Winsome Worthy leading at the half and finishing with Belle Onward in second place and Mildred McGregor in third place, she having been nosed out by Belle Onward.

The Summary.
Winsome Worthy by winning the three straight heats took first money, Mildred McGregor, second money, Belle Onward, third money, and Jeff B., fourth money.

Winsome Worthy 1 1 1
Mildred McGregor 2 2 3
Clay Wiggin 7 8 7
Jeff B. 3 7 5
Frank Moke 6 4 8
Annie Setzer 8 5 4
Justisima 5 6 6
Belle Onward 4 3 2
Time—First heat, 2:24 1/2; second heat 2:27; third heat, 2:26 1/2.

The second race of the afternoon also proved a close one, and some false starts were brought out. The surprise of the race was the winning of it in three straight heats by McKinney Maid, a little brown mare owned by J. B. Dinan of New York. There were fifteen horses entered in this race also, but seven of them were scratched before the race started, leaving eight starters. The race was 2:17 pace or trot for a purse of $250.

Billie Bryan Behind.
After several false starts and repeated warnings by the starter that if they came down to the wire ahead of the pole horse he would not send them away the first heat was finally started and at the half A. S. A. led with Castle Dome in second place, but on the closing half little McKinney Maid drew ahead and flashed under the wire a winner. The time was 2:19 1/2. Billie Bryan finished in last position.

In the second heat Bryan still lagged behind and finished in last position. At the half McKinney Maid was leading and she had no trouble in retaining the lead, and finished in 2:20.

The third heat proved a hot one with Doctor Weaver, an Ellenville horse entered by M. H. Weaver, pushing McKinney Maid hard, but the brave little mare finished a nose ahead, but the driver was forced to ply the whip as she approached the wire. The time was the fastest of the three heats, being 2:19 flat.

The Summary.
Madam X, br. m., F. Brooks, Valley Cottage 4 4 8
Billie Bryan, br. g., L. Deyo, Rosendale 8 8 7
A. S. A., b. g., J. W. Fink, Newburgh 2 7 4
Mack McGhan, blk. g., D. C. Lucas, Monticello, Pa. 7 2 3
Henry T., gr. g., Wm. Rowe, Rhinebeck 5 6 6
Castle Dome, b. g., S. S. Shurtler, Ellenville 3 3 5
Doctor Weaver, s. g., M. H. Weaver, Ellenville 6 5 2
McKinney Maid, b. m., H. Muller, New York 1 1 1
Mack McGhan, second money; Castle Dome, third money, and A. S. A., fourth money.

Time—First heat, 2:19 1/2; second heat, 2:20; third heat, 2:19.

Link Lawrence, Starter.
Link Lawrence of Hartsville was the efficient starter in charge of the racing and his work came in for a good deal of favorable criticism, and he got the horses away to a fair start in every heat of both races.

Where is Robins?
The free attraction that was promised for the fair was not seen on the grounds, and President Potter when asked where Maud, the trick mule, was, said that it was no fault of the fair officials that Maud was not present. He explained that they had made a contract with Frank A. Robins, the circus man, to furnish a free attraction at the fair, and that it had been advertised. While some of Robins's stuff had arrived it still lay in the express office uncalled for, and although they had wired Mr. Robins they had heard nothing from him. Why Robins had fallen down

PARALYSIS CASES IN NEW YORK CITY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York August 18.—Thirty-two deaths from infantile paralysis and 125 new cases were reported today. The deaths were the same as announced yesterday, while the new cases advanced by four. The deaths from the epidemic so far reported now number 1,561 and the cases 6,911.

UTICA QUARANTINE NOW LIKE KINGSTON

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Utica, Aug. 18.—As a result of the discovery of a case of infantile paralysis in an adult in this city and the continued spread of the malady hereabouts, the local health authorities today announced the adoption of drastic measures to deal with the situation. No persons with children will be admitted to enter the city or leave here unless they have clean bills of health. The health department will positively not issue certificates of health to residents of Utica to go on vacations with their families, where they are chiefly concerned with their personal comfort and pleasure. The only persons to whom certificates of health will be issued to travel with children will be those who are able to show that it is necessary for them to leave the city.

All trains and trolley cars will be watched to prevent violations. The health authorities at Canastota announced today that no children under 16 years of age who are non-residents will be permitted to enter the village under any circumstances.

PARALYSIS CASE FATAL IN ACCORD

Sick Child Was Taken to Kerkonkson and Back on Train—Health Board to Enforce a Rigid Quarantine.

A case of infantile paralysis developed at Accord on Thursday afternoon and fear seems to be felt that other cases may occur. It is said that a Hebrew child two and one-half years old, boarding at the Rose Shifky house near Foley's Lock, was ill and the mother took it on the 10 o'clock train to Dr. Fuller's at Kerkonkson. It appears that the disease had not yet developed to the extent where its true nature was apparent but when the doctor saw the child again in the afternoon it was suffering from infantile paralysis. The health authorities have taken immediate steps to quarantine the place and it is said that the board of health is about to order much more rigid regulations in regard to public gatherings.

Schools to Remain Closed.

The child died at noon today.

As the state education board has called attention to the advisability of keeping the schools in the state closed until all danger from infantile paralysis is past the district school superintendents of Ulster county are taking up the matter of opening the country schools with the trustees and the various town boards of health. In most cases the boards of health already have ordinances that prohibit the opening of the schools.

In the town of Rochester, District Superintendent John M. Schoonmaker took the matter up with the health board and a meeting was held on August 16, at which time a resolution was passed to the effect that, on account of local conditions, it would in their judgment be improper, indiscreet and dangerous to the public health to have the schools opened on September 5th, the usual time; and it was recommended that the opening of the schools be deferred until local conditions have improved. When that time comes the health board of that town will again convene the school authorities will be promptly notified.

Superintendent Schoonmaker has notified the school trustees of the town of Rochester that all schools in that town should remain closed until further notice.

Kingston Has No Cases.
"No new cases and no suspicious cases," was the report handed out by Dr. Frank A. Johnston the local health officer, this morning when questioned about the infantile paralysis situation in Kingston. Effective quarantine is still being enforced, and the quarantine squad and the two trained nurses are still hard at work.

HEARING HELD IN BROPHY CASE. This morning after Dr. Frank L. Eastman had given his testimony, an adjournment in the hearing of Patrick Brophy, who is charged with stabbing John Lindhurst, was taken until Tuesday morning. The stabbing affray occurred some time ago, and Lindhurst, who was removed to the Benedictine Sanitarium, accused Brophy of stabbing him, and the latter's arrest followed. Bail in the sum of $2,000 was fixed and furnished.

Dr. Eastman said that he first saw Lindhurst on Third avenue, where he had been summoned, and found that he had lost considerable blood, and so had him removed to the hospital at once. He said that when he examined Lindhurst he found a deep cut in the right forearm, which had severed two arteries and was three inches long and one inch deep. There was also a superficial cut on the left side of the neck a quarter of an inch deep and another cut on the left side a quarter of an inch deep. None of the wounds were of a permanent character.

Judge X. Frank O'Reilly, who represented Brophy, asked Dr. Eastman if the wounds would not have been caused if Brophy had been laying on his back with Lindhurst on top of him choking him. Dr. Eastman said that judging from the position of the wounds they might have been.

In reply to further questions Dr. Eastman gave as his opinion that the wounds were made while the two men were in some other position than standing.

The stabbing, according to Lindhurst's statement at the time of the affair, was brought on by an argument.

Lindhurst was able to appear in court today, and wore his neck bandaged where it had been cut. He was not represented by counsel, which was one of the reasons why an adjournment was taken until next week.

After Ponckhockie Gang. Hasbrouck Alliger called on Recorder Lang this morning to get a warrant for the arrest of nine small boys residing in the neighborhood of Ulster and Catharine streets in Ponckhockie. For two years these boys have annoyed the residents of Abryns street and vicinity with their trespassing, stealing fruit and throwing stones, and when remonstrated with by the ladies are very insolent and insulting in their language. The matter has been turned over to Chief Wood and when the boys again appear, if the parties will telephone police headquarters, the patrol wagon with an officer or two will be sent to round them up and the recorder will see what can be done with them.

ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL IS VETOED. By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Aug. 18.—President Wilson today vetoed the army appropriation bill. At the same time he sent to the house a lengthy message making it plain that this action was entirely due to the incorporation into the measure of the provision that retired officers should not be subject to the articles of war. It is expected that the provision which the president complains about will be eliminated and that the bill then will be re-passed by both house and senate and signed.

In his veto message the president declares that the army bill is an essential part of the national defense plan and that he experienced "genuine reluctance" in delaying its coming into effect by asking that the objectionable provision be eliminated. He admits the necessity of bringing the articles of war up to date as they are in the bill and then declares they should apply to all officers both active and retired.

Chairman James Hay of the house military affairs committee introduced the army appropriation bill in the house with the entire articles of war provision eliminated within half an hour after the president's veto had been received. In its new form the bill was sent back to the committee.

It was expected that it would be reported out and passed by the house without a record vote within the next two days.

ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL IS VETOED. By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Aug. 18.—President Wilson today vetoed the army appropriation bill. At the same time he sent to the house a lengthy message making it plain that this action was entirely due to the incorporation into the measure of the provision that retired officers should not be subject to the articles of war. It is expected that the provision which the president complains about will be eliminated and that the bill then will be re-passed by both house and senate and signed.

WOODEN STORES IN RUINED DUBLIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dublin, Aug. 18.—Almost daily little wooden stores are springing up in O'Connell street and the thoroughfares abutting on it, all of which were swept away by shell, shot and fire during the week of the insurrection. New buildings are making their appearance in the midst of wreckage and desolation.

The great majority of these structures are dainty little buildings, perfect dolls' houses, whose white and gold frontages, fixed around sparkling glass windows, contrast strikingly with the shapeless masses of brick and stone and contorted iron-work forming their background.

In these elegant stables various businesses are being carried on. Chemists, jewelers, and tobacconists, whose premises were destroyed have moved into the new buildings. So far, only one saloonkeeper has re-opened. This place is close to the old post office and business should be brisk. For within one minute's walk of that building there were fifteen saloons, all of which were wiped out, as though a prohibitionist had been directing operations during Easter week.

All the big businesses in O'Connell street and the adjoining streets cannot so easily start fresh ventures in wood structures. For instance, several monster hotels were down in this locality.

When will central Dublin be rebuilt? Tim Healy, M. P., says it will take twenty years, but without adopting that estimate, it is safe to say that for some years to come the Dublin road city within a city will be one of the sights of the Irish capital.

In the meantime, however, business materials are very dear, and there is much to be done to repair the wreckage of that awful Easter week. The claims of the traders whose premises were destroyed amount to $12,500,000. But the British government is not showing a merciful spirit in regard to these demands, and the money for the rebuilding will be forthcoming, not as a loan, but as a gift.

IDEAL PARK.

Ideal Park, Aug. 17.—Roy Matthews and lady friend, Miss Burbank, of Albany were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Matthews at Ideal Park on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Powley and family, also Mr. and Mrs. Gene Livingston of Kingston were guests at Ideal Park Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Schryver and family, also Mr. and Mrs. Van Aken of Poughkeepsie have taken possession of "Hutchinson" bungalow for a few weeks at Ideal Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woelker and Mr. and Mrs. Verrill Smith of Kingston were callers at E. E. Matthews' house Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Haines and family of Kingston are spending their vacation at Mr. Dederick's bungalow in this place.

We were all sorry to learn of little Caroline Nebel's arm being fractured while playing on Monday, this being the second accident within the past few weeks. We hope for her speedy recovery.

Hilton Matthews was the first unfortunate, having fractured his arm three weeks ago while playing at Ideal Park. He is now convalescing.

A very pleasant evening was spent at J. H. Palen's camp on Thursday, August 10. Mrs. Robert Bennett of Brooklyn and daughter of Mr. Palen, celebrated her thirteenth wedding anniversary. Music was the feature of the evening. Master Arthur Bourgeois, nephew of Mrs. Bennett, and Dawson Bennett, her son, rendered some very fine music on the piano. Dainty refreshments were served and at a late hour Mrs. Bennett's friends departed wishing her much joy and for the return of many more happy reunions.

The Rev. Mr. Lomas and family of Brooklyn are at their camp in Ideal Park.

Miss Ruth DeVall and lady friend of Brooklyn were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy DeVall on Sunday afternoon.

The Misses Ruth and Esther Carl of Kingston are on a shopping trip to New York.

We are all patiently waiting to hear the "echo" of the wedding bells which will soon ring from one of our "Hill Tops" in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks and family of Kingston are spending their vacation at Ideal Park club house.

Mr. and Mrs. Osgood of Brooklyn are entertaining Mrs. Osgood's father at their bungalow here.

MARBLETOWN.

Marbletown, Aug. 17.—Miss Pearl Osterhout of Kingston is spending her vacation with her grandparents in this place, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bush.

Roy Palen has returned to this place, after spending a few days with his parents in Walden.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Myer and family of Kingston spent Saturday with relatives in Kripplush.

Mr. and Mrs. John LeFever and family of New Paltz and Mrs. Maggie DeWitt and daughters of Long Island called on friends in this place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Freer of Rifton and niece of Yonkers spent a few days the past week with their daughter, Mrs. A. A. Myer.

Andy Johns, who had just pitched his moving picture tent in this place one day the past week and before having time to fasten it down securely a shower of rain and wind came upon him. Andy taking refuge in his tent. The heavy wind blew it down and the next thing seen of Andy he was crawling out from under and making for the nearest house.

The state road through this place, which has just been resurfaced, is not a pleasant road to drive upon at present.

Daniel Bodley, who has been confined to the house for a long time, is able to be around again.

PINE GROVE.

Pine Grove, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Mary Burton and son, Frank, spent Saturday night and Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Clum, on Clum Hill.

Miss Mary MacMillan of Connecticut is spending her vacation with her cousins, the Misses Ruth and Edythe Pratt, at Pine Grove farm.

Adelbert Lupo and wife of Woodstock were Sunday visitors of her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Mower, at Centerville.

Mrs. Charles Smith has returned from a short visit to relatives out of town.

Mrs. Edward Bishop spent Friday with her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Mower, at Centerville.

Mrs. J. Daly of Blue Mountain spent Friday with Mrs. Jane Charlton.

Edward Bishop and son, Charles Bishop, are employed at George Nehrs' Woodstock.

The Woodstock Lutheran minister was in this place the past week, calling on friends.

James Pratt and family, who have been spending some time at their farm here, have returned to Hackensack, N. J.

Charles Farrell spent Tuesday night at Charles Bishop's.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones of Saugerties was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Eleanor Mower, on Saturday.

Mrs. Luke Yager, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Jane Wolven, has returned to her home in West Saugerties.

Miss Edna Ellsworth is visiting relatives out of town.

Percy Myrland, with a party of boarders, motored to Ashokan dam one day last week and on Sunday took a trip to Catskill.

ATWOOD.

Atwood, Aug. 17.—Preaching Sunday, August 20, at 2:30 p. m., by the Rev. Mr. Wittkamp. As we will have the opportunity of hearing him twice more, we hope for a nice congregation.

Mrs. H. Bush visited her son and family, E. Markle, at West Hurley the past week.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hasbrouck on Monday and left them a baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Davis visited relatives at Ringwood on Sunday.

Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. Stephen Krom, and daughter called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Oakley, Mrs. John Van Doren and grandchildren, Clarence and Lillian Van Demark, motored from Kingston to John Van Doren's on Sunday.

Earl Taylor, who has been camping along the Esopus the past fortnight, has returned to Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Winchell visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Quick, recently.

WHITFIELD.

Whitfield, Aug. 17.—Miss Louise Hill of Kingston spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Barley and family.

Mrs. Simon Hornbeck spent Thursday afternoon at the Idylkrest Farm.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE.

This recipe makes a dozen and a half delicious little tea cakes: Cream one tablespoonful of butter and the same of lard with one cupful of sugar; add two well-beaten eggs, three-quarters of a cupful of milk, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of extract of orange, three-quarters of a cupful of currants, one and three-quarter cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; mix as usual and bake in Muffin pans 15 minutes.

Jellied Dates.—Soak a box of gelatin in one pint of water for 15 minutes, pour over it three pints of boiling water, and when dissolved add the juice of three lemons and the grated rind of one. Sweeten to taste and pour into a mold which has been partly filled with halved dates and walnuts. Serve with sugar and cream.

Stuffed Celery.—Season rich cream cheese with paprika, onion juice and Worcestershire sauce and add cream or olive oil to make soft enough to spread. Fill short, tender stalks of celery with the seasoned cheese and serve with the salad course.

Potato Salad.—Cut in cubes six cupfuls of cold, cooked potato; add one cucumber cut as fine and three tablespoonfuls of finely minced parsley and a tablespoonful of scraped onion, two teaspoonfuls of salt and a half teaspoonful of pepper. Toss lightly until well blended and let stand in a cool place until ready to serve. To a pint of double cream add four tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar and beat until thick to the bottom of the bowl. Mix with the vegetables and serve at once.

Novel Salad Dressing.—Take three fresh eggs, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, three of this onion or water and a half-teaspoonful of salt. When thoroughly mixed, put into a double boiler and beat with an egg beater while the water cooks the mixture. Take the dish out of the hot water as soon as it is thick or it will overcook and curdle. This is such an easy way of making salad dressing that it should be made more often.

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 18.—Democratic testimony that the Underwood tariff bill fails by upwards of $200,000,000 to raise its share of the revenue needed to carry on the government is furnished by the Senate finance committee, which has, after strenuous labors, reported a supplementary revenue bill imposing special taxes designed to raise $200,000,000 revenue. Probably many Democrats would be reluctant to admit that this means taking out of the pockets of Americans over $200,000,000 which, under a different tariff could just as well be taken out of the pockets of foreigners; although there is much evidence to support that contention, clearly established instances where the wholesale price of the foreign manufacturer has been advanced exactly the amount of the reduction in the tariff, so that the American consumer gained nothing from the reduction of the duty. But no Democrat can deny that these special taxes are made necessary by the failure of the Underwood bill to provide sufficient revenue. The special taxes are bound to be onerous in many cases. For instance, every theater or place of amusement which seats 250 must pay a tax of $25; which seats 500, a tax of $50; and so on up. All bowling alleys and billiard parlors must pay a special tax of $5 for each alley and each table. Every mortgage and certificate of indebtedness must pay a stamp tax of 50 cents for every $500 of amount. A tax of duty is imposed by special taxes on all goods entering and coming out of custom houses and bonded warehouses. Steamship and Pullman tickets bear special taxes, and many other things, in addition to doubling the income tax, and imposing heavy taxes on inheritances. The house tax on war munitions was rejected when it was found it would hit cotton, and there was substituted an additional tax on the profits of corporations which it is expected, will be collected almost entirely in the northern states.

Tariff Still Churns.

Reports from the west indicate that whenever Gov. Hughes touches upon the tariff and states the Republican position his remarks are most enthusiastically received. This confirms the view of the Republican managers that a majority of just about 1,500,000 of the voters in this country believe in a protective tariff. In 1912, it is recalled, the combined Republican and Progressive vote exceeded that received by President Wilson by upwards of 1,300,000. In that election there were some Democrats who voted the Progressive ticket, and many Republicans who, being opposed to Roosevelt and feeling that could not win, voted for Wilson. But taking it all in all, the estimate of a million and a half majority of protectionists is doubtless correct. Assuming this to be true, and knowing the unequivocal and unswerving advocacy of protection on American soil, the Republican managers figure that every Democratic or unidentified voter who is won by an exposure of Democratic incompetence, Mr. Wilson's weak, vacillating foreign policy, his needless invasion of Mexico, and so on, means an addition to those who will naturally vote for Hughes on the square issue of protection. Furthermore, they find considerable measure of confirmation of their view in the spectacular efforts of the Democrats to preempt a small corner on the protection band wagon. Mr. Wilson's eleventh hour conversion to the creation of a tariff board, etc. In due time the Republican orators will make a drive on the tariff, accompanying their argument with analyses of the Underwood tariff bill and its effects which, they assert, will pretty nearly blow their Democratic adversaries out of the water.

Face Saving Legislation.

It is generally an occasion of surprise that the party in power should devote so much time and energy to what is merely face saving legislation. Such a measure is the Philippine bill just passed. This measure had for its real purpose the pledging of the United States to retire completely from the Philippines within five years. Even the potent influence of President Wilson was insufficient to save this provision, and without it the bill is almost meaningless. It makes certain changes in the Philippine government, but they are unimportant. The preamble is bad, because it is false. It is designed to raise in the minds of Filipinos hopes of independence, which there is no immediate prospect of gratifying. The embodiment of this preamble in the legislation is worse than useless. The New York Tribune pronounces it "Enacting a Lie." Senator Borah demanded why the Democrats wanted to pass this bill at all in its emasculated form, but he got no satisfactory answer. Mr. Borah had voted for the bill when it contained the Clarke amendment, fixing the five year period, but he voted against the bill when that amendment had been stricken out, and, furthermore, he surprised the Senate by announcing that he had become convinced that the great majority of the American people were against the scuttling policy in the Philippines. The real reason why the bill was passed in its emasculated form was "to save the face of the president." He had decreed that the bill must pass and he and his friends in Congress believed that if Congress passed something called a Philippine bill the people would be for unimpaired to observe that they had actually demanded that the bill be rejected, and would construe the passage of the mere shell as a Wilson victory. Another "face-saving" measure which probably will be shipped through is the Wilson-McAdoo bill. It won't be the real Wilson-McAdoo bill, which Congress could not be induced to pass, but a comparatively innocuous substitute which can do nothing worse than involve the waste of $50,000,000 of the public funds, and which won't involve the United States in the European war, as would have the original Wilson-McAdoo measure. Here again, the only object in passing the emasculated bill is "to save the face of the president."

Jobs for Contributors.

The attention of your correspondent is called to the fact that there is a disposition in some quarters to go far too far in criticizing the awarding of political jobs to contributors to the Wilson campaign fund. It is pointed out that there is nothing intrinsically bad in giving a good place to a man who has contributed to the presidential campaign fund. What is bad is the appointment to important offices of men without the ability to give good service, merely because they were contributors to the campaign fund, and the displacing of men who are rendering especially good service, or serving with skill in peculiarly difficult positions, merely to make room for what Secretary Bryan termed "deserving Democrats." No more striking example of what is condemned has occurred than the displacement of Ambassador Herrick, at Paris. Mr. Herrick was rendering service so extraordinary for its efficiency, under the most delicate and difficult circumstances, that he had compelled the unqualified admiration not only of the French, but of the entire European diplomatic corps. He was the energetic, sympathetic, skillful friend of the thousands of non-combatant citizens of the central powers who were detained in France because of the war and were in dire need of the services which he so freely rendered them. And Mr. Herrick was displaced to make room for an amiable gentleman from Indiana without either experience or qualifications but only "a deserving Democrat."

One View of the Study of Latin.

If one does not study things because they "train the mind," why, then, should one study them? The answer is extraordinarily simple. One studies things because they serve a purpose. I do not say, mark you, a useful purpose, but a purpose—a valid purpose, a genuine purpose, not a make believe purpose.

Mental discipline is not a valid or genuine purpose—it's a make believe. Meanwhile the number of purposes, of genuine, valid purposes, is simply infinite. Learning to read Vergil is, of course, just as valid a purpose as learning to play a symphony or learning to bake a pumpkin pie. The test is, however, not, Did the student get mental discipline? but Can he read and enjoy Vergil? Can he play the symphony? Will some one eat the pie?

And because people rarely care to read Vergil, because almost none of the thousands who study Latin ever can or do read Vergil, therefore, in so far as they are concerned, studying Latin has no purpose and cannot be defended as mental discipline.—Abraham Flexner in Atlantic Monthly.

How Leaves Purify Air.

It has been calculated that a single tree is able through its leaves to purify the air from the carbonic acid arising from the respiration of a considerable number of men, perhaps a dozen or even more. The volume of carbonic acid exhaled by a human being in the course of twenty-four hours is put at about 100 gallons, but by Bonningault's estimate a single yard of leaf surface, counting both the upper and the under side of the leaves, can, in favorable circumstances, decompose at least a gallon of carbonic acid a day. One hundred square yards of leaf surface then would suffice to keep the air pure for one man, but the leaves of a tree of moderate size present a surface of many hundred square yards. All other forms of vegetable life act similarly in abstracting the noxious carbonic acid from the atmosphere.

The Art of Optimism.

Live in the active voice, intent on what you can do rather than on what happens to you; in the indicative mood, concerned with facts as they are rather than as they might be; in the present tense, concentrated on the duty in hand without regard for the past or worry about the future; in the first person, criticising yourself rather than condemning others; in the singular number, seeking the approval of your own conscience rather than popularity with the many. Whoever lives the life of such unselfish devotion to the good of others and of all and lives it in the active voice, indicative mood, present tense, first person, singular number, is bound to find his life full and rich and glad and free—is bound, in other words, to be an optimist.—William De Witt Hyde.

Feat of a Baseball Pitcher.

Just one pitcher in the history of baseball—that is, a hurler who was working in a league of recognized standing and class—is credited with pitching two complete games in succession wherein the opposing batsmen failed to register a base hit. A big pitcher sailing under the name of Gene Wright, who hurled for the Dayton club of the Western association back in 1901, on Sept. 1 of that season pitched a no hit, no run game against Columbus. He followed up this feat by turning the same trick against the Grand Rapids team on Sept. 4.—New York Sun.

Tibet.

Tibet is all mountains and valleys. There is scarcely a plain worthy of the name. The mountain passes are at a high altitude and crossed only with great difficulty. The valleys are well populated, but the cities are small and the houses crude buildings of mud walls. The streets are narrow and dirty. Northern Tibet is peopled largely by nomad tribes, while in the south there is a more settled population.

Months Ago We Bought These In Big Quantities

Traveling men who visited us recently tell us that we are foolish to sell our stocks, even at our regular figures. They call our attention to the fact that in some cases present wholesale prices are higher than the figures we ask. WHY DO WE DO IT? We bought early, in tremendous quantities. We are satisfied with our usual margin of profit. We take this means of advertising the fact that we are

Fine Food Values at Planthaber's Saturday

The remarkable attendance at our sale last Saturday was as fine a tribute to square-dealing methods as anyone could ask for. Had there been the slightest uncertainty as to our splendid grocery, meat and provision qualities or the reliability of our service, not even our extremely moderate prices could have brought forth such a wonderful response from the shopping public. We expect another big day this Saturday. We have exercised special care in the selection of the food offerings mentioned below, because freshness and wholesomeness are essentials in everything that we offer our patrons.

PATRIOTISM.

Never let patriotism die. There is no greater sign of a general decay of virtue in a nation than a want of zeal in its inhabitants for the good of their country.—Addison.

The Clear Infinity.

That which we foolishly call vastness is, rightly considered, not more wonderful, not more impressive, than that which we foolishly call littleness, and the infinity of God is not mysterious, it is only unfathomable; not concealed, but incomprehensible; it is a clear infinity, the darkness of the pure, unsearchable sea.—Ruskin's "Modern Painters."

BOY SCOUTS AT CAMP WALTON

Twenty-four Boy Scouts in light marching order hiked to Camp Walton on the Lucas turnpike this morning and went into summer camp under Camp Master Atwood H. Townsend, Eagle Scout, of New York. The hike was begun shortly after 9 o'clock and the main column arrived in camp within a few minutes more than one hour which was pretty good time for the distance of 3.7 miles and a dusty road the greater part of the way.

After the Scouts were well on the hike an automobile detailed consisting of Scout Commissioner Charles A. Warren's machine and Vice-president Sam Bernstein's car brought along some additional supplies together with Camp Sanitarian, Dr. Raymond E. Sanderson. Machines and hikers arrived at about the same time and found everything at Camp Walton in apple pie order ready to receive the campers.

Bunks in three tiers on either side of a commodious frame bunk house with swinging shutters swung vertically along each row of bunks make a most comfortable sleeping place for the Scouts. In addition every arrangement for their comfort and health has been made and to say that the boys took their surroundings is putting it mildly.

The camp is on a little knoll on the farm of Senator Charles W. Walton near the scene of the clam-bakes which have made his hospitality famous in the past. Back of it is the cook house in charge of Gus Bonesteel, known as the best camp cook in Kingston. Between the cookhouse and the bunkhouse is the mess tent with tables and seats spread under canvas, the whole presenting a most attractive scene with its background of cedars and pines. The visitors were loud in their praise of camp appointments.

Scout Commissioner Warren assembled the boys upon arrival and in a brief talk told them something of the requirements of a scout camp and of the opportunity for fun and profit made possible by the establishment of Camp Walton.

"You must obey the Camp Master, Mr. Atwood, absolutely," said Mr. Warren impressively, "and not one of you can go off the farm under the rules of the town of Hurley health authorities."

In conclusion, Mr. Warren said that the building was now the property of the boys and was up to them to make such good use of it as possible and live up to Boy Scout rules. He then introduced Mr. Bernstein, who spoke briefly on the order and its principles.

"I can only endorse what your scout commissioner has so well said," declared Mr. Bernstein. "You should simply follow and live up to the advice that has just been given you. It will mean not only a good time for you in the present but will prepare the way for good times in the future. It will mean to be a Boy Scout you must know the principles and ideals of Boy Scouting and here is your opportunity. It is up to you boys to give attention and to learn what it means to be a Boy Scout."

Dr. Sanderson to whom Commissioner Warren gave credit as the chief inspiration of the camp movement next gave the boys some sensible advice as to daily rules for health.

"Straighten up your shoulders out here in the open air," he said, "breathe deep with your lungs and be regular in your habits, giving nature a chance to take care of your food supply properly."

The speaker then gave the boys advice as to tooth brushes of which all but one had brought along, told them of reporting headaches, or any indications of sickness to the camp master.

Mr. Warren followed with some remarks on the sanitary inspection of the camp, how the scouts should endeavor to build themselves up and learn obedience and other cardinal virtues of the order. He congratulated the boys upon having Mr. Townsend, an Eagle Scout, with them, and said they must learn all scoutcraft from him so that they themselves would be in a position to teach their fellow scouts.

The camp master then took charge of the boys and instructed them as to daily routine and other details of camp life in all of which the scouts took a deep interest.

In every way Camp Walton is up to the best sanitary requirements. A fine spring has been cleaned and protected against all possible pollution. Dr. Sanderson having found the water in every way satisfactory. Near the camp site is a lake where the older boys can enjoy swimming and there will be boating and fishing all within the farm area.

An artificial dam has been constructed below the spring and will furnish entertainment while the hikes and other entertainment features make the prospect most invigorating for every youngster in attendance.

All persons interested in modern camp life of Boy Scouts are invited to visit Camp Walton on Sunday afternoon. Directions are to follow out Lucas avenue turnpike 3.2 miles, keeping on straight out the Stone Ledge road to a total distance of 3.7 miles from the uptown post office, Kingston.

Unshed Horses.

The Indians, who had no superstitious as horsemen, never thought of shooting their mounts in any way, and yet they were capable of performing remarkable journeys over the most difficult country. Even at the present day in Japan the modern horseman finds a strong competitor in the old-fashioned samurai made of straw, which are fastened to the horse's hoofs very much as they might be to a man's feet.

RELEASED PITCHERS NOW MAKING RECORDS

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION HURLERS DOING WELL.

National league pitchers released to the American association for work this season are proving to be the stars of the organization.

George Pierce, formerly of the Cubs and now with Toledo, is doing the best of the former National league twirlers. He is Roger Bresnahan's most consistent pitcher.

Dan Griner, who was with the St. Louis Cardinals for years and who is now toiling for the St. Paul club, has done much to keep the St. Paul team from being last in the race.

Earl Yengling, who was with Cincinnati; Hub Purdue, who was with Boston and St. Louis; Bert Humphries and R.H. Bailey, who once wore Cub uniforms, are keeping in the spotlight with their commendable pitching.

COLLINS IN BATTING SLUMP

White Sox Brilliant Second Baseman Going Through Unusual Experience in Hitting Line.

It is an unusual experience for Eddie Collins to be away down in the American league batting list as he is this year. Eddie's mark up to date is but .251. It is probable that he will better this before the season closes, as he is hitting in better form than he was, but he will have to go some to get within the charmed .300 circle, where he has been a shining light for a number of years. Last year Eddie finished second in batting averages, with .352. This year

BASEBALL NOTES

McGraw has a bright prospect in Schupp.

Don't forget that Jim Thorpe is developing into a real ball player.

Hornsby of the Cardinals is the star of the league this year in the infield.

Submarines won't do the Athletics any good; what they need are aeroplanes.

Rube Marquard says that he would rather beat the Giants once than draw a month's pay.

Hook Warner, Dayton Central league third sacker, has been sold to Pittsburgh for $4,000.

Connie Mack is going to call on a submarine commander to find out how to get to the top.

Bert Daniels, once with the Yankees and now with the Louisville Colonels, is laid up with a broken leg.

J. Luther Cook, the former Yankee outfielder, has been benched by the Oakland club for poor hitting.

Certain National league umpires rise to remark that Johnny Evers is the boy who put the rave in Praves.

The strongest team in the American league is the Athletics. Stauding at the bottom, they hold up seven clubs.

There is a difference between German submarine and Mack's Athletics. The submarine finally came up for air.

All that Ray Caldwell has to do to win is to pitch airtight ball and then bat out a victory himself. The Yanks can't hit for him.

Eddie Rousch, the outfielder traded to the Reds as part of the deal for Herzog, is a real ball player, according to latest accounts.

Before retiring last night, Presidents Tener and Johnson issued bulletins reporting everything quiet in the various theaters of war.

HAS CONFIDENCE IN NABORS

Connie Mack Expects to Make Great Pitcher Out of Youngster—Lacking in Experience.

Connie Mack is confident he can make a great pitcher out of Jack Nabors. There is not another manager in the game who would have sent a shipping players from major league youngster, with a little knowledge of the fine points of the game as Nabors points.

Mathewson decided to keep Hal Chase on first base permanently, so he away with it in splendid style. In fact did not need Fritz Mollwitz. Chase in this great chance Mack killed two can play first base better than he can birds with one stone. He did not think the outfield.

Nabors would win, but, knowing that he must get more experience and confidence, figured that he could get twice hit to President Johnson in an affidavit, figured that he could get twice hit to prove his contention that his amount of each in an opening day for to prove his contention that his game in preference to an ordinary counting on the American league batting championship hasn't expired.

U.S.S. KENTUCKY PASSING UNDER BROOKLYN BRIDGE

CIVILIAN SAILORS LEAVE NEW YORK ON WAR TRAINING CRUISE.

(U. S. S. Kentucky Outward Bound Under Brooklyn Bridge, With "Rookies" on Her Decks.)

New York, August 18.—With a complement of 900 regular "jacks" and as many civilian "rookies," the battleships Maine, New Jersey and Kentucky, are "somewhere on the Atlantic," where the "rookies" are learning the art of naval warfare for the first time.

The practice cruise, which will last for one month, the civilian sailors will be taught all the drills that are a part of life of the regular enlisted sailor, gun loading and firing and target practice.

Business men, professional men and college students are well represented in the training crews. Jim us Spencer Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan, is one of the "rookies" aboard the Maine.

DRAMATIC INCIDENTS.

How Sothorn Learned of the Deaths of Booth and McCullough.

It has been my fortune to encounter two rather startling coincidences in connection with the death of Mr. Booth and John McCullough.

The night that Edwin Booth died I was taking supper in the dining room of the Players' club with three friends. There were no other men in the club. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning. We, of course, knew that Mr. Booth was ill, but his death was not expected immediately. While we were talking over our meal suddenly every light in the club went out. My companions began to call for the waiter and protest loudly. From the darkness light at my elbow a voice, that of Mr. McCullough, the manager of the club, said: "Flash! Mr. Booth is dead!"

The day Mr. McCullough died I happened to be studying the play of "Cymbeline." I was reading the song in act 4—

Fear no more the heat of the sun
Nor the furious winter's rages;
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone and taken thy wages.
Golden lads and girls all must
As chimney sweepers come to dust.

When a friend of mine opened the door of my room in the Starbuck House and said, "McCullough's dead."—From "My Reminiscences" by E. H. Sothorn in Scribner's Magazine.

OLDEST LIVING THING.

Ancient Forest Giant That Towers In Sequoia National Park.

Towering a giant among giants, the oldest living thing that connects the present with the far past, stands in its midst, its dignity and its world old experience, the General Sherman tree is the patriarch of the Sequoia National park of California.

This wonderful tree was already 2,600 years old when Christ was born. In the age when the known world was pecking in the throes of the Trojan wars and the time that history tells us marked the exodus of the Hebrews from Egypt this greatest of Sequoia specimens was a flourishing sapling of some twenty or thirty feet in height and truly under the special care of the Creator, who held it safe from the lightning of his wrath as he did from the attacks of earthly enemies.

The General Sherman was discovered in 1879 by James Wolverton, a hunter, and named by him in honor of General William T. Sherman. It towers 275 feet into the sky, its base circumference is 102½ feet, its greatest diameter 36½ feet, and it has developed a diameter of 17½ feet at a point 100 feet above the ground.—National Geographic Magazine.

Perilous Practice.

PRISON DE LUXE FOR ILLINOIS CONVICTS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 18.—Prison cells de luxe—each an outside room with carefully washed air, glass roofs and all modern conveniences—get your orders in early.
That is what the state of Illinois is providing for its erring population. If there is anything in modern penal architecture that has been overlooked, the authorities are anxious to know what it is.
Each cell will be an outside one because the cell houses are to be circular in form. The new penitentiary is being built on a tract of 2,193 acres four miles from the present prison, northwest of Joliet. It is to cost $3,500,000 and the foundations of one cell house have just been laid.

The plan contemplates eight circular cell houses around a central dining hall, with which each will be connected by a corridor. Each cell-house is to be 150 feet in diameter and to accommodate 250 prisoners. Every cell will be an "outside" cell and its window will open on the wall in prison yard. Its inner front will be glassed-in, making each cell a room.

In the center of the cellhouse will be an observation tower. In this a guard constantly will be on watch. From his position near the center of the tower he will be able to command a view of every cell in the circular building. He will keep watch through slits from a darkened interior and the prisoners will not know which ones are under suspicion.

The roof of the cellhouse will be of glass. An elaborate ventilating system will be installed. The air will be washed and heated. Sunshine will reach every cell. The windows will have steel bars on the inside of the glass casement and on the outside also. To break out a convict would have to saw through both sets of bars while under constant observation.

All the cellhouses will be connected with the administration building at the entrance by underground tunnels which can be instantly closed in case of an outbreak.
On one side of the group of cellhouses will be the chapel and on the other the hospital. Not far away will be the shops and between the shops and the walls the pumping plant. The dwellings of the warden and assistant warden will be outside the wall near the administration building.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Charming Dress in Empire Style.

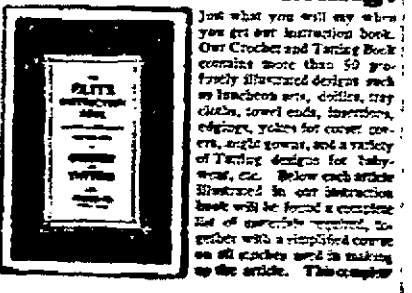

1741—With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths.
Figured challie and "Val" lace are here portrayed. The bodice belt is of white messaline. Dimity, lawn, checked or striped taffeta, batiste, embroidered crepe or voile, all these are fine for the development of this model. The yoke shown on the small views may be omitted. The skirt is full and gathered under the belt, to the waist at Empire waistline. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for an 8 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1916 large Fall and Winter Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Miss Harriet Church and Miss Jennie Wood were out driving Wednesday.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Aug. 18.—The social event of this week took place at the Merritt Homestead on Lucas turnpike, when Miss Merritt and Master Frederick entertained about thirty of our young people, including some from Kingston. The party came for a good time and were most pleasantly entertained. It was better than could have been imagined. Every minute was fully occupied in all the varied diversions that such a happy affair could create. Main feature was a "Salmagundi" party, a progressive table affair, with amusement and interesting situations in its constantly changing arrangements. There was a main prize as well as a booby prize, both of which were allotted after an interesting contest. In addition there was music, dancing, of course, and games. About midnight the young people enjoyed the delicious refreshments for which the Merritt homestead is noted. An interesting feature here was the selection of partners for the luncheon, where card-waiters finally found each other by the gymnastics or other functions carried out by the male member of the couple; not the least amusing was threading the needle. All things must have an end and so somewhere in the smaller hours the happy party found their way home.

Miss Ethel Elmendorf is visiting her cousin, Miss Catharine Hasbrouck of Dobbs Ferry.

Miss Myer of Kingston and Miss Kemp of Brooklyn are at Mrs. Mable's.

Mrs. Ray Smith and Miss Garrison of Kingston were visitors in the village on Tuesday.

Charles Dumond, Mrs. Abram Dumond, Mrs. Newkirk Dumond and Mrs. Maxon attended the funeral of Mrs. Nathan Wolven in Kingston on Wednesday. Mrs. Wolven was a sister of Miss Sarah Dumond, who has been visiting at the Brink homestead.

Miss Mericle, who has been visiting in Kingston, has returned to her usual stopping place, the Markle's.

Mrs. Smith and her son, Frederick, of Staten Island, spent Wednesday night with her brother, Grant Smith.

Miss Grant of Kingston has been spending a few days with Miss Ellen Smith.

Miss May Mason has gone on a visit to Massachusetts.

Mr. Eckert, who has been so very ill for some time, is feeling a little better and sits out doors during the daytime.

"Judge" and Mrs. Dumond intend to go to the Ellenville fair on Friday.

Stunted Maples.

Stunted maple trees, grown in mountainous regions of eastern Austria, where the winters are long and severe and the snowfalls considerable, yield excellent wood for the manufacture of violins.

HEALTH ORDINANCE, Town of Kingston.

WHEREAS, a serious epidemic of poliomyelitis, commonly known as infantile paralysis, is now extant in the city of New York, and spreading to other communities;

NOW THEREFORE, pursuant to the power vested in the board of health of the town of Kingston, by virtue of section 21 of the public health law, and by virtue of the other statutes in such cases, made and provided by it, BE IT

RESOLVED AND ORDAINED: That it shall be the duty of the board of health of the town of Kingston, to immediately report to the local health officer, the names, addresses and ages of all persons under or about 15 years of age, who are present in the town, or from attending any theater, moving picture show, opera house or any gathering or assembly within said town, or from attending any Sunday school, church, excursion, picnic, entertainment or other gathering, or from visiting any ice cream parlor or place, or store where ice cream, soda water or other beverages or articles of food are sold or dispensed, and all persons under sixteen years of age coming within the bounds of the said town, for the purpose aforesaid, shall submit to an examination by the local health officer or representative as soon as possible after their arrival.

Third. No child under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted in any theater, moving picture house, opera house or other place of amusement within the said town of Kingston, and all gatherings, assemblies, excursions, picnics and entertainments of children under the said age are hereby prohibited within the bounds of the said town, and all children within the said town under said age are forbidden to attend any Sunday school, church, excursion, picnic, entertainment or other gathering, or from visiting any ice cream parlor or place, or store where ice cream, soda water or other beverages or articles of food are sold or dispensed, or from attending any theater, moving picture show, opera house or other place of amusement within the said town of Kingston.

Fourth. That all persons suffering from poliomyelitis shall be strictly quarantined for a period of six weeks from the date of the probable onset of the disease, and every person suspected of having poliomyelitis shall be strictly isolated for a period of six weeks from the date of the probable onset of the disease, or until the presence of the disease can be definitely excluded.

Fifth. Every person under the age of sixteen years who resides or infers in or inhabits a household, boarding house, hotel, camp or home in which a case of poliomyelitis now exists, or has existed within the two weeks last past, or where such a case shall hereafter exist, shall be strictly quarantined for a period of two weeks from the probable date of onset of the disease, and in the event any person under the age of sixteen years of age in any such household, boarding house, hotel, camp or home shall have entered the room of a patient suffering from poliomyelitis, or shall be in the establishment of the diagnosis, then such child shall be quarantined for a period of six weeks.

Sixth. That it shall be the duty of the board of every private household and of the proprietor or keeper of each hotel, boarding house or lodging house within the said town of Kingston, to immediately report to the local health officer the names or sickness of any person who shall be visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such place or under the care of such person.

Seventh. That the premises where a case of poliomyelitis exists shall be placarded in such a manner as to advise the public that such disease exists upon the premises, and so that such placard will be plainly visible at the main entrance to the house.

Eighth. Any person who violates this ordinance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding six months or by a fine of fifty dollars, or both.

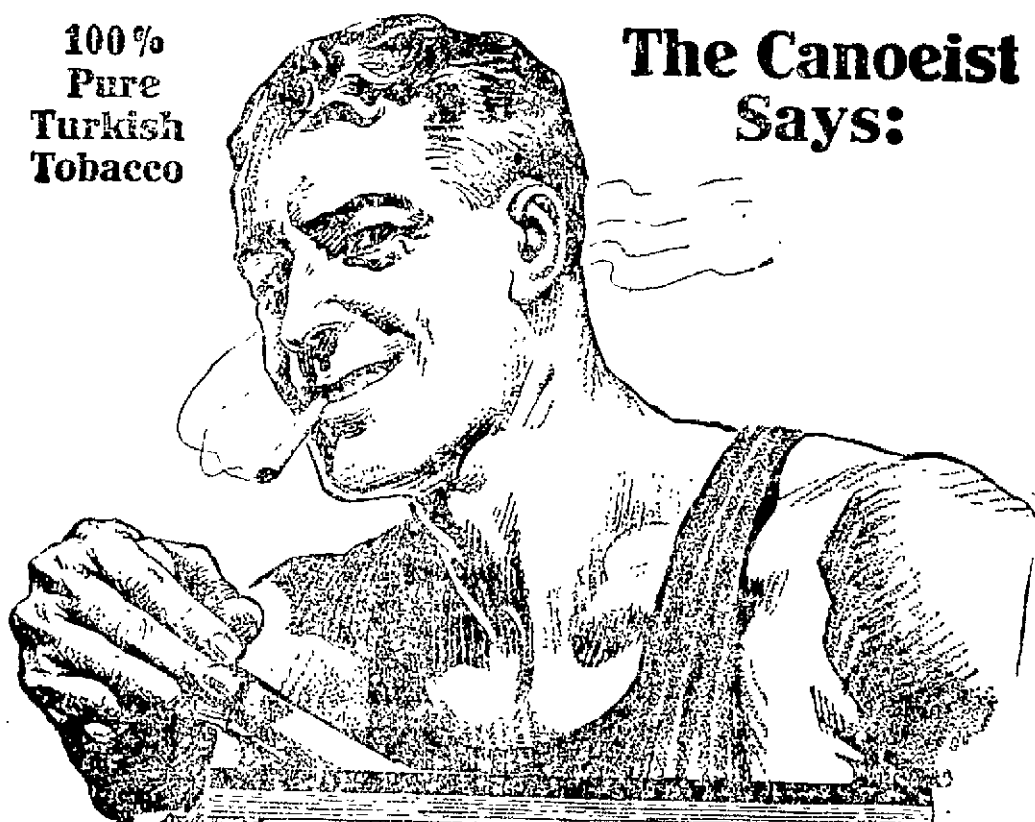

Ninth. This ordinance shall be published once each week for three successive weeks in the following papers, to-wit: The Kingston Daily Freeman, The Kingston Daily Leader and copies thereof shall be posted in at least ten conspicuous places within the town of Kingston, and that the same is a true and correct copy of the original thereof and the whole thereof and every part thereof.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the official seal of the town of Kingston, this first day of August, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen.

WILLIAM HANRAHAN, Town Clerk and Clerk of the Board of Health of the town of Kingston, N. Y.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO

August 18, 1896.—Water commissioners bought fifty more acres of land for the new reservoir.

Fourteenth Separate Company went on moonlight sail to Newburgh.

Death of Richard E. Houghtaling, for many years agent at Kingston for the American Express Company.

Charles D. Lantry of this city died at the Grand Hotel.

August 18, 1906.—Reported that a shirt factory was seeking to locate in Port Jervis.

Lines of the Citizens' Standard Telephone Company rendered useless by a fire which destroyed the barn of Mrs. Thomas Telford on East St. James street.

Thomas Street Sewer.

The board of public works at a special meeting held on Thursday afternoon decided to build the Thomas street sewer. A number of other important matters of a civic nature were talked over, but no action was taken.

Facts of Endurance.

What is the limit of human endurance?

A bomb thrower has hurled bombs continuously for forty-one hours.

There are numerous striking and more peaceful record breaking feats. A club swinging champion once swung his clubs for forty-six hours without a moment's rest.

A young Brixton athlete once swung a blacksmith's hammer for twelve hours on end. Then this same modern Samson belabored a punching bag continuously for fifteen hours at the average rate of 145 punches a minutes.

A few years ago two Frenchmen walked round and round a billiard table, playing game after game and covering sixty miles for twenty-four consecutive hours.

A band of change ringers once ran the bells of St. Martin's, Birmingham, for eight hours without pausing.

A certain Polish lady danced, with only momentary rests, for thirty-four hours, while an Italian dancer danced for fourteen hours at the rate of eighteen waltzes an hour.—London Stray Stories.

Song of the Flame.

Fire can be made to sing. A writer says: "Take a lighted candle and blow gently against the flame. You will hear a peculiar fluttering sound. The fluttering sound is fire's first attempt at music. Instead of the steady breath of our lips let us employ the steady blast of a blowpipe. Instead of the pale and flickering light of a candle let us use the bright and ardent glare of a chemist's lamp. When you have a lamp and blowpipe you can make fire sing in earnest."

REVEALED A STATE SECRET.

An Indiscreet Envoy Who Paid Dearly For His Loose Tongue.

In a history of the Turks, Chalcoy, a Greek, relates how a fleet of Crusaders sailing toward Constantinople in the beginning of the thirteenth century was becalmed at the entrance of the Hellespont.

At that time there was at the court of Athens an ambassador of the king of France, who set out in a galley to visit the chiefs of the fleet. The admiral, conscious of him that he had been ordered to take Constantinople by surprise.

The ambassador spoke of the difficulties and dangers of this passage, as it was between two banks from which ballistae could hurl upon the vessels enormous stones, boiling oil and, above all, Greek fire.

The admiral revealed to him that the governors of the forts would make little resistance, as they had been bribed. The ambassador was so pleased that as soon as he had returned to land he had great trouble to hold his tongue. He was heard to prophesy in mysterious words that the famous passage would soon be forced.

As there were spies on all sides the words of the ambassador were soon carried to Constantinople. When the fleet presented itself in the Hellespont the catapults of the Turks manifested great activity. The helmsmen of the fleet had been removed and others were in their places. The admiral and ambassador was recalled to Paris and executed.

She Was.

"Now, my angel!"

"Now a word," said his wife. "You can't join me. You came in soaked last night, and I'm going to put it down in my diary."

"Ah my recording angel!"—Kansas City Journal.

Let this be your constant maxim. "That no man can be good enough to neglect the rules of prudence."—Fielding.

Character.

Character is not cut in marble—it is not something solid and unalterable. It is something living and changing and may become diseased as our bodies do.—George Eliot.

Old Enough to Notice.

"Are your papa and mamma at home?" asked the caller.

"No," replied little Marguerite. "One of them may be here, but they never are both at home at the same time."

Words and Actions.

"Is Blissius a patriot?"

"Yes, but he's the kind that would be more useful in a school of gladiators than in a training camp."—Washington Star.

Salary of the President.

In the second sessions of the Sixtieth congress the president's salary was fixed at $75,000 a year, and in addition he is allowed $25,000 for traveling expenses, which is practically extra salary, as he does not have to return any of it not used for traveling expenses.

FIREMEN WILL BUILD NEW HOME

The annual convention of the New York State Firemen's Association, which has been in session for several days at Seaside, Rockaway Beach, Long Island, closed on Wednesday.

The Association voted to appropriate the sum of $80,000 for the erection of a new fireproof home at Hudson, instead of paying for additions to the present structure. A wing of the new building will be used for the wives of the aged inmates.

The most important proposition related to the revision of the by-laws, which were amended so as to allow the president and two vice-presidents of the Association in the future to have votes as members of the executive committee. Previously they had no votes and during the past year the president has been unable to get a quorum of the committee to carry on business.

Management of the Firemen's Home at Hudson is in control of the southern New York tier of counties, from Poughkeepsie down, which section contributes about two-thirds of the funds for the maintenance of the Home, and the management of Home will be retained by officers from the Southern New York section. The next meeting place will be chosen later by the executive committee.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: John Seely, Yorkville, president; John J. Mahoney, Lockport, first vice-president; Arthur R. Wallace, Freeport, second vice-president; John P. Powers, Ossining, treasurer; Thomas Holman, Frankfort, secretary. The three members elected to the board of directors are: Samuel H. Williams, Rochester; Daniel Bradley, New York; William Frank, Poughkeepsie. The new members of the executive committee are: Michael J. Daly, Mechanicville, for a full two-year term, and John C. Hottinger of Buffalo, to fill the unexpired term of Fred Wilson of Lockport, who was killed in an automobile accident shortly after his election as trustee last year.

Utility Coat With All of September's Points.

MOTOR TOON

This motorcoat has for fabric a dark green velours, cut with odd raglan sleeves, a voluminous collar, baggy sleeves and plaited hips. Huge buttons close the front in a novel triangular effect. The full hat of dark green tulle is trimmed only with a tulle ribbon around the sideboard turbau bands.

SUMMER "IFS."

Interesting Ways to Beat Nuisances of the Season.

If there is a hole in a rubber hot water bag, a hole which cannot be mended, fill the bag with salt or sand heated in the oven. The result will be a satisfactory one if the bag was filled with water.

If you would have your summer supply of white silk stockings remain white, always see to it that they are dried in the shade and washed in like warm water, as heat turns them yellow.

If small ants, which sometimes get into houses, prove a pest with you, place a sponge soaked in water, in which sugar is dissolved in the path of the ants. They will swarm into the sponge, and then be plucked into it.

If you are leaving the house closed for a short time, rub the smoothing iron with lead to keep them from rusting. On your return dip them in hot water, dry them thoroughly and then heat them.

If you wish to make a satisfactory polish for hardwood floors, shave an ounce of tea wax into a quart of turpentine. Rub this well on the floor with a flannel cloth and then rub to a polish with a dry cloth.

If a white dress has been soiled and soiled, try cleaning it with lemon juice and salt or salts of lemon and water. If it remains streaked color it with one of the lightest dyes to be found in the shops.

If one gets a cold or other annoying ailment, throw away and discard on the outside let it stand for three days filled with butter-milk, which will, by its acid, remove all the stain.

If a rubber shoe becomes torn or out, place a strip of sticking plaster sticky side next the rubber on the inside of the shoe.

If you wish to keep cheese from molding, cover it securely with a cloth wrung from vinegar.

If the brass polish gives out, do not worry, but instead go to work at the brass with lemon juice.

If anybody's finger is burned, dip the burn with powdered charcoal to keep it from smarting.

To Keep Goldfish Healthy.

Goldfish may be kept healthy by giving them a salt bath about every two weeks. Do it in this way: Put a tea spoonful of salt in a quart of clear water and place the fish in it for fifteen minutes no longer. When changing the water in the aquarium, a small wire strainer will be found a great convenience. Pour all the water from the goldfish bowl, with the fish, into a basin. Rinse the bowl, dry it, fill with fresh water and with the wire strainer pick up the goldfish and drop them back into the bowl. Aquariums should be kept in a cool place and not exposed to the direct rays of the sun. Feed the fish every other morning, allowing six or eight fish one-fourth of a sheet of food cut in small pieces. Sick fish have often become strong and healthy after a few salt baths.

Egg Sauce.

Make a white sauce from a cupful of rich milk thickened smoothly with a tablespoonful of butter and four seasons with paprika and salt and add a hard boiled egg chopped fine. This is especially good with boiled codfish.

Modern Designation.

"Are you a back writer?" asked the girl who hasn't much tact. "No," replied Mr. Peppercorn. "I couldn't make a living by it alone like a back. I'm a motorist."—Washington Star.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS PREVENTIVE RULES

Keep your home or apartment absolutely clean.

Go over all woodwork daily with a damp cloth.

Sweep floors only after they have been sprinkled with sawdust, old tea leaves, or bits of damp newspaper. Never allow dry sweeping.

Screen all windows against flies. Do not allow garbage to accumulate. Do not allow refuse of any kind to remain in your home.

Kill all forms of vermin.

Pay special attention to body cleanliness. Give your child a bath every day and see that all clothing which comes into contact with the skin is clean.

Keep your children by themselves as much as possible. Do not allow them to visit places where there may be a large gathering of children.

Do not take your children with you when you go shopping.

Do not allow your children to be kissed.

ST. Remy.

St. Remy, Aug. 18.—The remains of Augusta Frost, daughter of Mrs. Eliza Frost, of Altamont, Pa., were brought to this place for burial on Thursday. Miss Frost leaves a number of relatives and friends in this place. The family have the sympathy of the community.

Raymond Lyon, who has been home for a few days, has returned to Walden, where he has employment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence returned to Middletown on Friday accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoffman and daughter, Elizabeth. Mr. Hoffman had been at Camp Whitman with Company M of Kingston, and has now resumed his position at Middletown.

Simon Van Vliet, Lewis Van Vliet and Schuyler Deyo are at Rhinebeck for the present, where they are thrashing for the farmers in that vicinity.

A number of young people from this place visited Evergreen Park on Wednesday evening.

George Lawrence and a party of friends from Kingston attended the Ellenville fair on Wednesday.

Miss Hilda Frost, entertained a few of her friends Thursday afternoon in honor of her birthday.

Miss Elizabeth Frost is visiting friends at Lake George.

Set an Example.

What can you and I do to restore goodness to its original interest and attractiveness in the world? Show the world some. The best service rendered to the cause of man is not by the man who goes about arguing technical points, but by the man who plays a little of it and makes the people feel its beauty and power. All of us cannot play an instrument or sing, but all of us can live in the spirit of goodness. Live your best self, not a second or third rate substitute.—Dean Charles R. Brown at Chautauqua.

Is Grammar Essential? Sometimes it is urged that formal grammar teaches children to write and speak correctly, but as all Americans have studied formal grammar, including newspaper reporters and salesmen, there would appear to be no guarantee that formal grammar study leads to correct habits of speech. On the other hand, I once knew a school where for fourteen years not a minute was spent on formal grammar, and like the water that does not mix a slice or two, so one never knew the difference.—Athletic Monthly.

Period Furnishing.
"Period furnishing is splendid when intelligently done," said a decorator. "A regency drawing room, an empire dining room, a Charles II library or a house so furnished is delightful. But you must buy your period things from dealers who know their business. Some dealers don't. I once heard a lady say to a dealer: 'This chair is Louis XVI, but my dining room, you know, is Louis XIV. Would that chair go in it, then?' 'Sure, madam, sure,' said the dealer. 'Louis XIV, and Louis XVI, always go together. You see, there's only two years between 'em'."—Washington Star.

But you must buy your period things from dealers who know their business. Some dealers don't. I once heard a lady say to a dealer: 'This chair is Louis XVI, but my dining room, you know, is Louis XIV. Would that chair go in it, then?' 'Sure, madam, sure,' said the dealer. 'Louis XIV, and Louis XVI, always go together. You see, there's only two years between 'em'."—Washington Star.

WHEN POLICE AND FIRE LADS MEET

Great Game of Baseball Sept. 18, at Athletic Field—Benefit of Pension Fund—Not Afraid of Hoodoo Number.

Those slight rumbles that have been shaking the city for the past few days can not be traced to the heavy gun fire in Europe, but to something closer home, which will finally be brought to a climax on September 18, at the Athletic Field, when members of the police force will clash with the selected band of heroic ball tossers from the paid fire department to struggle for the championship of the city, and to incidentally add a little money to the pension funds of both departments. Tickets will shortly be on sale.

The game promises to be well let's take a glance at the police department and see what they have to offer.

First thing as we look over the list we find Andy Walker, who is so well known that he possibly can not go overlooked. Andy claims he has been a ball since, well a few years ago. He will be one of the main forces for first base. As one of the main equip Andy with a "pop" and no batting order. He can get by him, and a far from have to yell at him "get a strike!"

One of the things is an important item in the success of the game, and the police are Sergeant Hanley, and Police Officer Healey and Fout. There is also Policeman P. J. White. Officer White in his younger days used to work the old D. & H. canal and so became an accurate shot from firing at the mules when they became obstinate and wanted to rest awhile. His pitching arm has not lost its cunning yet.

Every member of the department is anxious to get a chance to play on the team and Policemen Hess, Simpson, Captain Boyd, Van Buren, Reardon, Phinney, Dugan, Connelly, Snyder, Welch, Dempsey, Kuehn, O'Neill, Shader, James Murphy, Charles Murphy, Damp and Lawrence and Patrol Driver Simon Wood, and Sergeant Murray are practicing faithfully under the able direction of Chief Wood. As fast as they distinguish themselves they will receive special notice and their chances of making the team will be discussed.

Now for the paid fire department. LaRue Weber was met the other night abbing his arm and when questioned as to what was the matter maintained a profound silence. It is understood now, however, that he is getting up speed and getting back his old pitching eye. All of the firemen are practicing hard and some have lost as much as half an ounce in flesh since they went into training. If you see Albrecht, Heppner, Kells, Egnor, Strubel, McElvath, Canfield, Brown, Conlin, Maines, Hoffman and Geary sprinting about town do not become alarmed thinking there is a serious conflagration—they are simply getting their wind in good shape.

Chief Chipp and Assistant Chief Wood are getting their men ready for the affair.

Further details from the rival camps will be given later.

BACON PETITIONS ARRIVE IN TOWN

Nominating petitions for Robert Bacon for United States senator were received in town this morning and signatures were at once obtained so that the petitions can be forwarded to New York and there joined with petitions from other counties of the state and later filed with the secretary of state so that Mr. Bacon's name will go on the Republican primary election ballot.

Mr. Bacon's committee to fill vacancies which will also be the committee in charge of his primary campaign and his campaign for election in the event of his nomination, is composed of the Hon. Joseph H. Chase, former ambassador of the United States to Great Britain; Job E. Hedges of New York city, and Judge A. T. Clearwater of this city. Mr. Bacon became a candidate for the nomination at the urgent request of a number of prominent Republicans throughout the state, and his announcement that he would make the primary fight against William H. Calder of Brooklyn was made in New York city late Thursday afternoon. On Wednesday Mr. Bacon was in conference with former United States Senator Euan Root, and in New York on Thursday he conferred with Mr. Hedges and other prominent Republicans.

The candidacy of Mr. Bacon, it is stated in this morning's New York papers, will have the active co-operation of William Barnes, who is said to have given assurances that he can carry Albany county ten to one over Mr. Calder. Mr. Hedges, in agreeing to help run Mr. Bacon's campaign, said that Mr. Bacon, because of his long experience in state and diplomatic matters, was better qualified to handle these matters in the United States senate than any other candidate. Colonel Roosevelt, while being for Mr. Bacon personally, it was said, will not take any part in either the gubernatorial or senatorship contest.

Robert Bacon has served as secretary of state and as ambassador to France.

Let me ask you a question: Did you ever, on a freezing winter day, stand precariously in one slippery subway while you yawned your weary self with about a quart of water from another china bowl? If you think you would have persisted in this morning after morning, in an unheated bedroom, through hero weather, I advise you! You belong to the elect. —The Atlantic.

This Car Was Made At Kingston

$75,000,000.00 In Dividends

The automobile industry will pay seventy-five million dollars in dividends this year. The automobile industry is paying twice as much in dividends on its capitalization as the steel industry. Some automobile companies are paying from 100 per cent to 500 per cent per annum on the original investment. TEN years ago you could not buy a serviceable automobile for less than $2,000; five years ago your choice below $1,000 was limited and strictly limited. The motor car has become literally less costly than a pair of decent horses, at first price, and, of course, much less expensive to maintain from all points of view. THE INDUSTRY has been democratized.

THE AUTOMOBILE DIVIDEND KING

A dozen years ago, at a time now referred to as THE OLD days of the automobile industry, Henry Ford and his associates formed the present Ford Motor Company with a cash capital of $28,000. Upon that meager beginning has been built a business which for rapid growth and tremendous dividends has never been equalled since the world began. Not a dollar of outside capital was ever put into the enterprise after the original investment of $28,000; yet so profitable is the automobile business and so wonderful the demand for a low-priced car that the company has built up a surplus of almost $50,000,000; has assets of more than $60,000,000 and cash in banks amounting to $27,000,000 after paying millions in dividends every year and donating millions of dollars in cash to its employees under a profit-sharing plan. The company recently declared a stock dividend of $48,000,000 divided among its seven stockholders.

The Remington Motors, Inc., would consider locating at Kingston, N. Y., and will open its plant here, adding thousands of dollars yearly to the trade channels of the city, if arrangements can be made. The name Remington is known the world over for QUALITY.

DOES KINGSTON WANT THIS MOTOR INDUSTRY TO LOCATE HERE?

Music of Living.

All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time. But there must be no hurry. There is no music in a rest, but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life melody and scrambling on without counting. Not that it's easy to count, but nothing on which so much depends ever is easy.—John Ruskin.

Sure Reward for Work.

Work in every hour, paid or unpaid; see only that thou work, and thou canst not escape the reward; whether thy work be fine or coarse, planting corn or writing epics, so only it be honest work, done to thine own approbation, it shall earn a reward to the senses as well as to the thought.—Emerson.

His Weak Spot.

You can't always tell. Tempt a good man to turn from the course of righteousness, and he is as staunch as Gibraltar; offer him some vicarious that he likes, even if he knows they are not good for him and he will eat and bump his head against the gates of eternity without a whimper.—Housman Post.

She Knew the Feeling.

Aviator—"And then when you are up pretty high—three or four miles—ray—and you look down, it's positively sickening. It is stupendous, awful. A great height is a fearful thing. I can tell you." Lady (feelingly)—"Yes, I can sympathize with you, poor boy. I feel just that way myself when I'm on top of a stepladder."—Tiger.

"ENERGIZE" MAKES GASOLINE GO FARTHER

Increases Mileage 25 to 50 Per Cent and Decreases Carbon Deposits—Invented by Kingston Chemist and Made in Kingston Factory.

"Energize," the newly discovered chemical which is credited with bringing gasoline up to more than twenty-five per cent greater efficiency, will soon be on the market in quantities, according to a statement this morning by Emanuel Metzger, head of the local company, which will manufacture the preparation in addition to its naphtha products. Tests made by a number of Kingston motorists are said to have brought all of the results claimed and a highly successful future is anticipated.

A chemical in powder form, "Energize" is defined as a composition used in explosives which has been found to be perfectly soluble in gasoline and in the proportion of one teaspoonful to five gallons increases the energy or efficiency of the gasoline to such an extent that a car can average fully a quarter more mileage by the use of it.

In addition to this claim based upon prolonged experiments, Mr. Metzger states that the compound will not form any carbon in the motor. The best gasoline available can never be completely exploded in the motor as sufficient air cannot be obtained without diminishing the power of the motor. The carbon is formed owing to the fact that at each explosion of gasoline there is an infinitesimal bit of gasoline remaining unexploded and the burning gives off smoke. While the effect of this combustion is small, in the course of 30 or 40 days the carbon thus accumulated is a nuisance and a loss in efficiency.

By the use of "Energize" a complete combustion is said to be obtained at every charge. The preparation is put up in packages retelling at 75 cents, $1.25, $2.50, and $5. The $1.25 package is sufficient for 150 gallons of gasoline. Thus the cost is a fraction of a cent per gallon, while the increased energy obtained is considerable.

In inventing the formula Mr. Metzger and Chemist Rose worked out "Energize" and incidentally looked over other preparations on the market. They found that ingredients used in these others were not free from injurious results to motors. Hence, a highly dangerous explosive, is used by some special outfits. In races, but the effect is and the need so dangerous as to prevent its use by the motoring public.

The new powder, however, can be pounded on an anvil without any explosion resulting. It burns when lighted but goes out after the match is removed.

Among local experimenters, David Burgevin used "Energize" on a recent trip to Crazzavoor and to make the journey over the Shawangunks without shifting a gear. With nine miles a gallon with his big Cadillac, Mr. Burgevin increased his mileage to 12 and 15 miles. In all more than thirty automobile drivers a Kingston have expressed their satisfaction with the results obtained after a thorough trial.

Mr. Metzger is planning to send a large quantity to a Chicago supply house next week for experimental purposes, after which this establishment will market "Energize" in the middle west. Next week will also see the Albany avenue factory busily engaged in turning out the preparation.

HEALTH CONFERENCE RECOMMENDATIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman Washington, August 18.—The nationwide conference between state health officers and public health service officials over the measures to stamp out the infantile paralysis epidemic was concluded here today by the adoption of a report prepared by the committee appointed to draft measures to prevent the interstate and intra-state spread of the disease.

The report as adopted suggests a stringent system of notification whereby the destinations of all children under 16 years of age who are traveling either within a state or between states, shall at once be reported to the health authorities in each destination.

It further suggests that when schools are opened in communities which have suffered from infantile paralysis, that high schools first open, the lower grades following in order downward. The opening of schools, it is set forth, should be no more rapid than complete medical examinations warrant.

The report urges state health authorities immediately to call the attention of the public health service to all cases of the disease.

The public health service is recommended to take this action concerning travel of children from infected areas.

Notification concerning the removal of persons 16 years of age or under, from an infected area to a named point of destination in another state, said notification to be addressed in every case to the state health authorities of the state of destination.

Identification of such traveler, the exact location of present or usual residence and record of previous visits to freedom from poliomyelitis during the preceding three months; as to latest date of infection or of vaccination or cleansing of premises after infection.

Permits to travel shall be void unless the journey begins within 21 hours after issue of the permit.

Permits for interstate travel should be signed by an officer of the United States public health service or by the state health officer, or by an officer authorized by the state health authorities.

The committee disapproved of quarantine by one state against another or by one community against another in the same state.

This further travel restrictions is provided: "That all persons 16 years of age or under with a clean bill of health, and who are an infected area or district to another locality should be kept under observation daily for two weeks from the date of the certificate."

To aid in preventing the spread of poliomyelitis, common carriers should instruct their agents by direct order, as well as by public notice that travelers with children of 16 years of age must be provided with a health certificate as detailed in another section of this report.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Adelia Mackey of the town of Wawarsing has been filed in the surrogate's court and a citation for its probate issued returnable October 3. The testatrix gives her estate to her sister, Sarah E. Mackey, whom she appoints executrix. The will was executed June 13, 1891, and witnessed by Samuel B. Low and the late John G. Gray, of Ellenville. The value of the real estate is $600 and the personal property amounts to $2,000. Bunnier and Canfield appeared in the executrix.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the accounts of Philip S. Patterson as executor of the estate of Owen Patterson of Ellenville and a decree was granted. Traver & Murray appeared for the executor.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the accounts of William L. DeGroot as executor of the estate of Sarah M. Gray of the town of Marlborough and a decree was granted. DeWitt Roosa appeared for the executor.

Estates Appraised.

County Treasurer Snyder as appraiser under the taxable transfer act has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of Sarah M. Gray of the town of Marlborough. The personal property amounts to $5,061.03 and there is no real estate. The debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $2,070.78, leaving a net estate of $2,990.25. William L. DeGroot, the executor, was represented by DeWitt Roosa; Joseph H. Venderlyn appeared for the state comptroller.

Lawn Social.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Wawarsing, Baptist Church, will have a lawn social at the home of Mrs. Mary Dumber, 43 Smith avenue, this evening. The public is invited.

The Guilty Conscience

Detective Overcome by Woman in Contest of Wits.

By FAITH BALDWIN Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Well built, well dressed, well groomed, the man entered the lobby of the typical New York apartment house.

As he did so he glanced hastily down the deserted drive, then across the dead street colored Hudson to the pearl and yellow lights glittering coldly along the Jersey shore.

Once inside the house he was soon inverting his key into the door of his apartments. He stepped into the warm glow of the drawing room, where a little woman, hatted and cloaked for the street, faced him.

In one swift glance she had noted his ashen pallor and the deep lines in his face.

"What is the matter?" she asked sharply.

"It's all up, Madge," was his reply.

"Impossible!" she gasped.

"It's true," he told her. "Listen! They may be here any minute now. We haven't time to clear out. Well, it's me for facing the music. Caught with the goods!" he moaned, dropping into a chair.

"You have it with you?" she questioned angrily.

"Yes, in my pocket," he replied.

"Shall I give it to you?"

"No! Let me think. In heaven's name what shall we do?"

"I wish I had your courage," he muttered.

"Here it is!"

He drew an open case from his pocket, and the woman uttered a stifled exclamation at the sight of the flashing blue-white diamonds displayed.

He slipped the jewels into his pocket and tossed the case to the woman, who shut it with a click of the spring lock and put it in her muff, which lay on a chair.

Then she watched the man go to the nearest door and remained rigid, listening to the ensuing conversation.

"Hello?"

"Yes, this is Mr. Mortimer."

"Did he give his name?"

"Is he a tall man, brown overcoat, gray suit, dark mustache?"

He listened eagerly to the answer, then, putting his hand over his mouth, cried hoarsely:

"He's here! What now?"

"Have him come up. It's the only thing to do, or he'll come anyway."

Hanging up the receiver, he faced the woman. Both of them were ghastly white. There was a short pause, but an eternity of time, and then a knock at the door.

"Come in," said the man steadily.

The door opened to admit a man tall, dark and comparatively young.

Richard Mortimer, he asked curtly. Then, noticing the woman for the first time apparently, he added: "I beg your pardon. I was not aware you had a."

"This is my sister," said Mortimer. "Will you kindly state your name and your business with me?"

The man threw open his coat, disclosing a police detective badge.

"My name is Burns," he said quietly. "And I guess you know what I want of you, all right, all right. You didn't quite get away with that little jewel stunt of yours, after all."

"No," he added as Mortimer started to speak. "I've traced the thief here to these apartments, and the best thing you can do is to come right along with me now, without any fuss."

"I don't know what you're driving at," said Mortimer sullenly. Then as the man moved toward him he cried threateningly:

"You can't take me by force, you know, and if you're looking for a fight, I'll—"

Burns sneered.

"The old dare of knocking a man down and dragging him off to the police station are over. Gone are the times for bloodshed and blows in the taking of a criminal."

"People realize more the importance of that little element in mankind that we call, in want of a better name, the conscience."

"You're silly, and you know it. You may as well be a runaway now, but the world isn't big enough to hold you and your guilt. Sooner or later you must give yourself up to the incor-porable law. You can't hold it."

"How do you know he is guilty?" asked the woman, speaking for the first time since the entrance of the detective.

"If he is he will tell me so of his own free will. Here," and Burns tossed on the table near by a pair of handcuffs.

The chill steel fell on the wood with an ominous clank.

"Sit down," said Burns gently to the pair whose fascinated gaze was fixed on the grim thing on the table.

"For the guilty person in this room will eventually wear those handcuffs by free will. There is absolutely no escape!"

Burns, watching, saw a swift, understanding glance pass between brother and sister, yet the true meaning of that glance he could not fathom, so blankly expressionless were their faces.

"What's your game?" he asked. "Do you expect to gain anything by invading my room and chucking a pair of handcuffs on the table in that spectacular fashion?"

"I stay right here till something happens," answered the detective. "If I'm still here for breakfast tomorrow morning. So take your time, for you may be doing it before long."

He smiled and offered Mortimer a cigarette.

The latter took one and lit it with the match shaking visibly.

Then he strolled over to the window with an effort of nonchalance that did not deceive the big man watching him so closely.

Apparently the woman was not misled by her brother's air of carelessness, and if Burns had observed her then he would have seen a look of contempt in the fever-bright eyes resting on Mortimer.

This expression was engulged in one of almost painful anxiety, however, as she saw her brother turn sharply and start toward the motionless detective in the manner of one whose mind was made up.

The eyes of the two men were fixed on each other—Mortimer had crossed to Burns and opened his mouth to speak—when a sound shattered the silence.

The sound of steel striking wood.

The men turned and speechless with astonishment saw the quiet little woman drawing the handcuffs across the table to her with slender, blue veined hands.

For a second she hesitated, horror visible on her face, almost recoiling.

Then in the hush she slipped the handcuffs on her hands, that seemed much too frail for their cold, merciless burden.

Then to the detective she said calmly: "I am ready."

Burns could hardly conceal his amazement.

"The jewels?" he asked briefly.

Her answer was to motion toward her muff.

Burns picked it up and drew out a heavy little jewel case, tight shut by a snap lock.

He slipped it in his pocket with a satisfied air.

"Thank you, madam. Will you come with me?" he said, turning to the door.

She took a faltering step toward her brother and said, her courage suddenly failing, "Don't—"

"Can you ever forgive me, Richard? I have brought nothing but sorrow upon you. If only I could have spared you this! Ah, what a fool I've been! And now it is goodbye!"

She turned to Burns, and her brother rushing forward, threw himself before the door to block their way.

"You shall not take her!" he cried at Burns furiously.

Then to her, in pleading, broken tones.

"Madge—Madge!"

"Hush," she said in reply, with a certain grave, sweet dignity. "The sin is mine, and mine must of necessity be the punishment. No, do not kiss me, even in farewell. By my own act I have brought it on me and now I am an outcast."

When Burns and his prisoner were about to get into a waiting cab, she seemed weak, but when Burns attempted to aid her in climbing into the conveyance she refused his proffer outrageously enough, though she shuddered at his touch.

The drive to headquarters was accomplished in silence.

Burns was full of speculations concerning the woman at his side.

The light touched her pale face and he noted with unaccustomed pity her appearance and extreme frailty.

Arrived at their destination, Burns went in to inform his chief of the arrest, leaving the woman in an outer room, guarded by a policeman.

"Well?" asked his superior briefly.

"Report on the Maiden Lane jewelry case," he answered curtly.

"You served the warrant?" was the next question.

"No, but—"

"But what?" impatiently.

"I worked the old gag of throwing the handcuffs down and trying the woman's conscience will get you trick."

"What do you mean?" quickly.

As Burns explained the chief's face grew more and more grave.

"The woman put the bracelets on herself?" he asked incredulously when Burns reached that part of his story.

"Yes," answered the subordinate one, filled with visible pride at his success. "I brought her with me."

"Where's the—what do you call him, brother?"

"What left him there?"

"What? You left him there? Oh, you fathead, you!"

It was now Burns' turn to demand abruptly:

"What do you mean?"

"What I said. Did you get those diamonds?"

In answer, Burns handed him the case. He took it, tried the catch, and failing to open it, shook the box close to his ear.

Then he dropped it with a look of disgust.

"There is nothing in that case, Burns," he said sternly.

"Nothing?" was Burns' horrified exclamation.

"Exactly! Now, Burns, how long have you been in the service?" the chief demanded.

"Six years, sir," was the reply, given very humbly.

"Six years! Well, no one would ever guess it after this last stroke of—brilliance!"

"WHAT IS YOUR NAME?" THE CHIEF ASKED THE WOMAN.

lancy. So you let him pull out—bag, baggage and booty, eh?"

Burns started to speak, but was forestalled.

"We'll just cut out the excuses," he was told firmly. "The next time remember to forget all this psychology stuff, and don't wait for your desperate criminal to capture himself, but the good, old, strong arm dope and deliver the goods if you have to hit your man on the head, and likewise break an arm, or a leg or so, to do it. Now bring that woman in here!"

Burns, shamefaced, but only half convinced of his mistake, went out, returning with the prisoner.

The chief looked at her sharply.

"What is your name?" he asked her.

"Madge Ryan," was the calm reply.

Her air of quiet sadness had dropped from her like a cloak, and she tossed her head with something very near to bravado.

"You are not the sister of the man who calls himself Mortimer?"

Again a little defiant movement of the head. This time expressing negation.

Then rang the impulsive rollicking laugh of the street zamin, after which she spoke.

"Would I wear those for a brother?" she sardonically inquired holding out her manacled hands. "Not me!" she added with conviction.

"Of course it was the man who pinched and got off with the jewels," remarked the chief.

Then turning to the crestfallen Burns he added, "You see?"

Burns did not see, and the air of one who clutches at a last forlorn hope he muttered something about "accessory."

"Don't be an utter idiot, Burns," said the older man. "Unleash those cuffs!" Burns without a word obeyed.

"You may go," the triumphant "I" of Mr. Mortimer was told, "and I trust that the next time we meet we may be able to detect you for a little visit in a nice, cozy cell."

"Thank you for your kind wishes," she told him audaciously, and turning to Burns, she added:

"I do hope your conscience won't worry you too much, Mr. Burns."

Then, with a cheery "Good evening, gentlemen," she walked out smartly.

The two men watched her go in silence. Then Burns turned and said with much feeling:

"Well, I'll be damned!"

"You ought to be," said his chief grimly, "for of all the phibed plays I ever saw this—"

The chief's head snapped up suddenly with an idea.

"Hold on!" he said between shut teeth. "We're still a chance."

"This gung up on the drive may be slow in making a getaway and we may beat him out to it before his wife returns to tip him off. So hustle up there."

Burns broke all speed limits in his wild taxi ride to the uptown apartment, but when the door was opened to his loud official knock the same small woman faced him with a smile that goaded him to madness.

That smile was his answer.

"How'd you happen to get here first?" he snapped viciously.

"I was in a hurry," she answered sweetly.

"Where's—where's he gone?" he blurted in mad rage.

"Suppose you find out. That's what detectives are for," she suggested, and calmly slammed the heavy door in his face.

Outside on the deserted drive, however, all that Detective Burns found was a motor or two flying hither and yon, and in the distance the dead, slate colored surface of the Hudson reflecting the glittering pearl and yellow lights of the Jersey shore.

"The Star Spangled Banner"

Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star Spangled Banner" on board the British frigate Surprise during the bombardment of Fort Mifflin, Baltimore, by the British in 1814. When the British attacked the city Key went on an errand, under a flag of truce, to the British fleet, but was detained while the bombardment took place. He watched the progress of the fight from the British ship during the night, and in the morning, seeing the stars and stripes still waving triumphantly, composed the famous song. It was once printed and became almost instantly popular.

Worse Yet.

"Don't you see awfully tired of running to catch that 7:30 train every morning?" asked the city man.

"No, replied the commuter. 'I don't mind that so much. What gets me sore is when I beat my breakfast in about 10 seconds flat and break all records running to the train, only to find out that the 7:30 is half an hour late.'"

Big Fire in Amsterdam.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Fire which the police say was of incendiary origin, early today destroyed six factories and several frame buildings. The loss was over $50,000. Many men were thrown out of employment. The fire was still burning at eight o'clock, but the firemen had it under control.

One Exception at Least.

"You seem to think I'm never right about anything," said an elated fellow, right about that."

Handsome in the extreme is this lovely embroidered net collar. It comes high up on the neck in the back and falls below the shoulders. Long points fasten in a V in front. This model was one of those shown at a recent neckwear exhibit participated in by about 20 manufacturers each of whom submitted five models. The object of the exhibit was to standardize neckwear styles.

GEN. SIR HENRY RAWLINSON COMMANDING BRITISH ARMY ON THE SOMME.

One of the most distinguished officers commanding Gen. Hops British forces now fighting furiously along the Somme River, is Commander General Henry Rawlinson, mentioned in some of the recent dispatches from the front.

The accompanying picture is sent out by the British War Office. It was taken "somewhere in France." An interesting point in the picture is the crepe band on the arm, which all British officers are now wearing in honor of the late Lord Kitchener.

(BOBBY WALLACE.)

"BOBBY" WALLACE IS REAL VETERAN OF BIG LEAGUES.

The return of "Bobby" Wallace to baseball as a member of the Browns is a reminder that in point of service he is the real major league veteran now. While "Bobby" is a few months younger than "Hans" Wagner he was in the National League before the Pittsburgh wonder started.

Wallace started his baseball career as a pitcher, joining the old Cleveland National League Club in 1896. Wagner did not get started until 1897, two years later, when he threw in his lot with the Louisville Nationals. Between the advents of Wallace and Wagner, Lajoie, now with the Athletics, came into the league, starting with the Phillies, in 1896. Wagner was forty-two last February, Wallace will be forty-two in November, while Lajoie is forty-one.

"Eddie" Plank is just five days older than "Larry," and in many ways is the most wonderful performer of the quartet. However, Plank did not start in the big league until 1901, when he joined the Athletics direct from college.

BASEBALL OF BYGONE DAYS

Related by James Wood, Captain and Manager of the Famous Chicago White Stockings of 1870-71, to Frank G. Menke.

"The first game of the memorable Chicago White Stockings-Cincinnati Red Stockings series was played in the latter part of September, 1870, in Cincinnati amid scenes unparalleled on any ball field.

"The Red Stockings never had been beaten on their own grounds. The feat was considered impossible by other teams that had played there during 1869 and the early part of 1870. Those players had told us that if the visiting teams had a chance for victory the umpires—Cincinnati products—would get busy in behalf of the Red Stockings; if the umpires couldn't swing the trick alone, the crowds would menace the opposing players to a point where they would quit trying to win rather than risk the danger of being hit by missiles or mobbed by the crowds after the game.

"I had considered all these things before I took my boys to Cincinnati. I told each one what he might expect from the crowd if we should happen to win. But they were a brave, fearless lot, my boys, and they vowed—and kept that vow—that no show of hostility by the fans would effect their playing one iota.

"I was determined that the umpire was not to be a Cincinnati, making that condition emphatic from the outset. The Red Stockings demurred at first, but when they found that I meant exactly what I had said—and wouldn't play the game unless we had an impartial umpire, they reluctantly assented.

"Just before the game began we made an announcement to the stands that we wanted some spectators to umpire the game for us—and that Cincinnati and Chicago residents were barred. From our of the stands, after a long delay, stepped a salesman, named Milligan, from Philadelphia. He convinced us quickly that he was thoroughly conversant with the game, and he was named as umpire.

"The game began, with the Cincinnati Ball Park crowded to its 10,000 capacity. At the outset, the Cincinnati gamblers were circulating through the stands waving huge rolls of bills. They offered odds of 20 to 1 against us at first, but these gradually sluffed down to 15 to 1 when the Red Stockings' supporters saw how quickly their money was snatched up by the small band of rooters who went to Cincinnati with us.

"We jumped into the lead in the early innings and held it throughout. Several times the Red Stockings tried to rally—but failed. They never caught up with us and we won 6 to 3. During the first part of the game the crowd was orderly. It felt certain that the Red Stockings would overhaul us. But when the game had gone along seven innings, with the White Stockings still in the lead, the crowd got busy.

"It hurried threats at our players and menaced our catcher and tried to frighten Umpire Milligan. The Red Stockings also tried to bulldoze Milligan. But he was of the sort who wouldn't stand for it. He knew full well that if the Red Stockings were beaten on their own grounds, that he was in great danger of foul treatment by the thousands who had bet so heavily on their Cincinnati team.

"But Milligan was of a heroic mold. He umpired that game fairly and squarely as he saw it. He played no favorites. And we accomplished on that hot September afternoon what had been considered impossible—the defeat of the Red Stockings on their home grounds.

"Immediately after the game was over the crowd swarmed upon the field, intent upon wreaking vengeance upon us. I had anticipated this move and instructed my players for a quick get-away. When the last out was made we dashed for the exits and jumped into our carriages. As we ran across the field many of us were struck with stones and bottles. The frenzied Ohioans pursued us even after we had entered our hacks, pelting us with rocks until our horses had distanced them.

"Our victory over the Red Stockings on Cincinnati soil was the greatest sensation up to that time. And Chicago went wild with joy. When we got back home we were given a greeting unlike any ever accorded ball players before. We were the heroes of the hour—and of the year.

"Three weeks later we played the second—and the last game of the series. It was played in Chicago on a diamond in the Dexter Park Race Course. No other place in Chicago was considered big enough to accommodate the crowd that wanted to go to that game.

"The day the game was played the crowds started for the park early in the morning. All forenoon and during the early part of the afternoon, carriages wended their way to the park and there was always outside the gate a mob howling for admission. Before the game began, 27,000 admissions at $1 each had been sold, with another 25,000 in a wild scramble for tickets.

"And then the fence, unable to withstand the pressure of that surging mob, went down with a crash—and the mob swarmed in. Several attempts were made by the club officials to have that broken section of the fence fixed, but it was useless. The crowd, rushing in, swept everything before it, and the game began with the fence broken and the 'free admissions' still coming.

"The paid admissions for that game totaled 27,000; the 'free admissions' went well beyond 25,000, making a 52,000 crowd within the park when the call 'play ball'—the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a professional baseball game, sounded. "Eleven hundred carriages—the popular form of locomotion in that period—also were inside the park.

a rather unusual way. About two weeks before the game was played, Harry Wright, manager of the Red Stockings, and myself agreed that we would select the umpire in this way; each would write three names on a slip of paper and mail it to the other. In case one candidate was named by both, he would be the umpire.

"It was found that Ferguson had been named by both, whereupon he was appointed. The owners of the White Stockings wanted to pay Ferguson $300 and expenses, but the Red Stockings' owners balked and all Ferguson got was $100 and expenses.

"When the game began, the betting was seen. A vast sum of money was wagered on the outcome of that diamond battle. It seemed that every Chicago fan wanted to plunge his bankroll on our chances. The city as a whole had unbounded confidence in our ability. A big delegation of Cincinnati rooters and gamblers went to Chicago for that game and from the way they flourished $500 and $1,000 bills in the stands, it made it look as if they were commissioned to bet the entire wealth of the Ohio city on the chances of their ball club.

"It was in that game, by the way, that the Reds introduced to Chicagoans fast fielding practice as a preliminary. Before that time no club ever had practised fast fielding in a game in Chicago. The efforts of our players were devoted only to increasing their hitting skill.

"A mighty roar went up from the stand when Ferguson sounded his 'play ball,' and then the crowd settled back to watch the game.

"Things broke badly for us in the early innings. An error of two on the part of my boys, mixed with several long hits by the Red Stockings, gave them a lead of five runs. Later on they increased it and when the seventh inning was ended the score stood 11 to 2 in favor of the Cincinnati club.

"And then I rallied my boys. 'All get together now,' I told them. 'Here come our 'bloodyed' innings.' Get out and get after that pitcher. We'll win—we can't lose.'

"And the boys began playing with a new spirit. It always had been a peculiarity of my White Stockings to play their greatest ball during the last two innings of the game, and all around the circuit, the eighth and ninth innings became known as 'the bloodyed' innings of the White Stockings.

"It so happened in that game that the Red Stockings got last bats. The choice was decided by a flip of the coin—and I had lost. So we went to bat first in the eighth inning and hammered out five runs, holding the Red Stockings scoreless in their part of the inning.

"With the score 11 to 2 against us at the end of the seventh, the Cincinnati rooters were rushing around the stands offering odds from 25 to 100 to 1 against us. Strange as it may seem, they found many takers. Our backers still had confidence in us.

"When we went to bat in our part of the ninth—the first half—with the score 11 to 7 against us, the Cincinnatians still were laying huge odds against us. And then, amid an ever-increasing roar of applause from the crowd, we got to that Cincinnati pitcher; rallied in a way that ranks among the greatest ninth-inning finishes of all time. We smashed the ball to all parts of the lot, and when our side finally was retired, it was found that the tide of battle had shifted; that we, by scoring nine tallies in that final inning, had torped into the lead, 16 to 11.

"The Red Stockings took their final bats and attempted gamely to overcome our lead—but their efforts were futile. They pushed across two couals and then went out, making the final score 16 to 13 in favor of the White Stockings.

"And so ended the series—with Cincinnati and the major portion of the baseball world of that era aglow at our 'impossible' performance—and with Chicago in a delirium of baseball fever from which it never recovered—and never will.

"(Note.—The sixth and final chapter of 'Baseball of the Bygone Days' will appear tomorrow. It will tell how Mr. Wood, in 1875, incorporated telegrams arranged for the throwing of ball games for the benefit of gamblers. It tells of the drastic action taken by Mr. Wood, and how his discovery of crookedness brought about the formation of the National League in 1876.—Editor.)

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke).
McGraw must think very well of Benny Kauff's fence-busting abilities. He sent in a pinch hitter for the former Federal League star.

But despite the change the Giants could not shake the Vaughn jinx and lost out, the Cubs scoring the only run of the game.

The Red Sox didn't look very much like pennant winners yesterday when the other hosiery experts trampled them hard, and used the kalsomine.

The Yankees have a new lease of life. They trimmed the Indians for the second time, and made it four straight victories.

Only six games separate the Red Sox, in the lead, and the Yankees, in sixth place.

The Dodgers made an auspicious beginning, trimming the Pirates and widening the gap between their lead and the Phillies and Braves.

The Browns did not find easy picking in Quakertown. The Athletics beat them in the first game, and made them step lively to stave off defeat in the second.

The Nationals were easy picking for the Tigers.

Grape Leaves for Tea.

Berlin, Aug. 18.—Since the importation of tea has been cut off by the British blockade, all kinds of substitutes have been tried, but few of them have proved satisfactory. Last spring experiments were begun with the young leaves of the grape vine and the result was surprising. It was found that the tea obtained from the leaves had an excellent flavor. In early summer hundreds of tons of the leaves were cut and dried in the wine districts of western and southern Germany and they are now sold everywhere as "genuine German tea."

Emma Magowan Entered.

Emma Magowan, who broke the world's two-year-old record for a half-mile track by trotting in 2:13 1/4 in winning the two-year-old trot at Goshen Wednesday, is entered in The Vassar two-year-old trot at the Poughkeepsie grand circuit meeting the week of August 28 as is the Gettenger filly Ante Guy, who finished second.

Wire Mill to Make Paper.

The Roseman wire mill, located on the westerly side of the Kinderhook creek at Rossmann, Columbia county, has been bought by the Hoboken Paper Company of Hoboken, N. J. It will be overhauled, equipped with machinery to manufacture a high grade of paper.

Rifton Dance.

The regular weekly dance will be held at Baldwin's Casino, Rifton, on Saturday night. These dances are very popular and well attended. A good time assured to all who attend.
